UFO'S ARE REAL! THE CBS-TV SNOW JOB!

HOW THE NETWORK TRIED TO BURY THE REAL UFO STORY.

BY ROBERT A. GOERMAN
Director, OMEGUS Commission

Sometime ago, CBS had a news special with CBS news correspondent Christopher Glenn and Carol Martin. The nature of the show was to show that all UFO sightings could be explained.

Presented here is the preliminary analysis of the above named CBS News Special broadcast, which was aired December 4, 1976 on KDKA-TV channel 2, Pittsburgh, PA and WTAJ-TV, channel 10, Altoona, Pa.

Copies of this report have been distributed to all persons and organizations interested in UFO research.

These are direct quotes from the CBS-TV Show, and rebuttal remarks are by Robert Goerman.

Glenn: Wait! I see we have something from correspondent Carol Martin in the field.

Martin: That's right, Chris. This is Carol Martin out in Long Island, N.Y., where an Unidentified Flying Object has just passed overhead. Look at it! (Eerie sound effects and slow motion footage of a "Frisbee" in flight).

Glenn: Well, it certainly looks like a flying saucer. Carol, what do you suppose that is?

Martin: Wow! (acting surprised) Well, I guess it is a flying saucer of sorts, but, most people would call it a...Frisbee.

Glenn: Come on back, Carol. Let's take another (Carol Martin suddenly appears in studio)...look.

Martin: Hi, Chris!

Glenn: You sure get around.

Martin: You have to when you're tracking flying saucers.

Glenn: You know, it was a pilot named Kenneth Arnold who saw something he couldn't identify back in 1947. He said it was round, and he called it a flying saucer. He was the first to use that name.

Rebuttal: Arnold saw nine discs flying in formation, like, he said, "A saucer skipping over water." As a result of his description, the newspaper headline writers coined the phrase "Flying Saucer" which rapidly became the most popular phrase to describe UFOs.

Martin: Well, we don't know what pilot Arnold saw, but we know that this is a Frisbee. Still, if you did not know that, and you wanted to believe that this was something from outer space, well, I bet you could convince a lot of people.

Rebuttal: The illogical nature of the above statement borders on propaganda. This example is far worse than simple misrepresentation of fact; it uses a background of authority to establish biased opinion as fact.

Glenn: You know, a lot of UFO's get reported that way. Someone sees something and isn't exactly sure what it is. They call the police. There's a story in the papers. People read the story, and they start to see UFO's. And pretty soon, everybody sees one.

Rebuttal: The "experts" try to slough off UFO sightings by claiming that a mass hysteria builds up after a few reports have been published. Nothing could be farther from the truth. There is no time lag, no build up of sightings. (Example: January 1st, 1975 UFO sightings in Illinois, where at least three, possibly more, similar, if not identical objects, were observed and dutifully reported by individuals by as much as 200 miles apart).

Martin: And maybe all that it was, was something simple, that any scientist could explain.

Glenn: That's right! Now what do you suppose we'd do if we opened our door tonight and looked out in the sky and saw this? (Segway to visuals of Aurora Borealis)

Beyond Reality feels that CBS-TV has not presented their case on UFOs properly and we feel it our duty to our readers to present the following report.

Martin: Oh! (acting afraid and confused) I know what I'd do. I'd slam the door and run back inside. What is that, Chris?

Glenn: This is the Aurora Borealis, the Northern Light. They're seen often in Alaska and Canada's Northwestern Territories, and they are beautiful.

Martin: Mmmm, they certainly are.

Glenn: But if you couldn't identify this as the Northern Lights, then seeing them in the sky could be very frightening.

Rebuttal: There has never been a single case in which a UFO sighting has later been identified as aurora effects. The least that CBS could do, if they truly wanted to be objective, would be to stick to the known facts.

Martin: Now what's that, Chris? (Again acting confused)

Glenn: This is animated film of satellites, one of thousands of man-made objects circling the Earth. (Close-up view of satellite as seen from space with Earth in background). Again, if you see it and don't know what it is, it's a UFO. Until someone, a scientist or a teacher, identifies it. And then it becomes an IFO (Identified Flying Object).

Martin: I see, and because so many people might see a satellite and not know what it really is, they'd report it as an Unidentified Flying Object; get's in the paper or on TV. And pretty soon people report this UFO that's not a UFO at all.

Rebuttal: The animated view of the satellite was factual enough, but it gives people a deceitful view of exactly what a satellite looks like from ground level. In reality, no actual form is ever seen, just the star-like source of light. Satellites travel a very steady course through the field of stars. They never stop nor change direction as many UFO's are reported to do.

Glenn: That's right. There's even a name for that. It's called a flap. A UFO flap. Most UFO sightings happen that way. When everybody in the same area sees the same satellite or meteor or the Northern Lights.

Rebuttal: According to CBS elite, the term "flap" is apparently defined as a condition of spontaneous hysteria, when known phenomena suddenly for no apparent reason becomes "indentifiable." This is probably a take-off on the original Air Force term, flap, which indicated a state of general confusion. The actual meaning of the word flap, now connotes periods of time, in which large numbers of UFO's are reported, regardless of geographic location or general descriptions.

Glenn: Hey Carol, where are you off to?

Martin: Well Chris, you said weather balloon, and here...it...is! They are big...and they get bigger as they rise high into the sky, eighteen miles high in fact. And they carry all kinds of equipment for measuring wind speed and temperature...all to help us predict the weather. But here at Fort Tauton, the National Weather Service launches over 700 weather balloons each year...and as we watch one go up, we can see how many people might think weather balloons are flying saucers from outer space.

Glenn: If you didn't know, that would be a UFO.

Rebuttal: According to the Air Force, weather balloons account for less than 02.5 per cent of the total number of UFO sightings. More accurate estimates place the number below the 01.5 per cent mark.

Glenn: There have been thousands of UFO sightings since

UFO'S ARE REAL: THE CBS-TV SNOW JOB/continued

Kenneth Arnold coined the phrase flying saucer nearly thirty years ago. For years, the United States Air Force investigated UFO sightings. But now private groups do the investigating. Almost all the UFO's have been identified as meteors and weather balloons, gases like the Aurora Borealis, even the reflection of an airplane's tail assembly. Most experts feel they can identify every UFO...and more important...there's no proof at all that a UFO from outer space has ever visited the Earth.

Rebuttal: (1) Once again, it wasn't Arnold, but newsmen like Chris Glenn who coined the term Flying Saucer. (2) During 1972, at a meeting of the Retired Officers Association in Baltimore, Maryland, Lt. Col. Lou Corbin stated, "Although the Air Force will deny it, they are still investigating UFO's. This is being done through two projects—"Oid New Moon" and "Blue Paper." Also, we have information that the Aerospace Defense Command has stepped up UFO interception pursuits. (3) It is true that a certain percentage of UFO sightings can be explained. (4) The only experts who feel they can identify every UFO sighting are those persons who sit in their ivory towers and give blanket explanations for UFO incidents without once ever thoroughly looking at all the evidence. (5) And as for that last point, what constitutes "proof?"

Glenn: Okay Carol—Let's take a close look at one of the most famous UFO sightings...

Voice: (Narration)—October 18th, 1973...A captain and a crew of three aboard a Bell UH-1H helicopter...The captain is the commanding officer of the 316th Medical Detachment, United States Army Reserve, based in Cleveland, Ohio. It's just past 11 P.M....The crew chief sights a bright red light, due east. The light seems to travel with the helicopter when suddenly, it grows larger...and comes faster...The light and the helicopter seem to be on a collision course. The captain puts his helicopter into a dive. The red light seems to follow the dive. The captain tells his crew, "Brace for impact!"...But, there's no impact. Suddenly the cockpit is illuminated, as if the object has stopped directly over the helicopter. Then the glowing object disappears to the west; radio contact is lost. But when the captain checks his altimeter, he finds that his helicopter is no longer diving; instead, it is gaining altitude. Glenn: What did the captain and his crew see? A UFO? A ship from outer space? Well, this sighting has been investigated by organizations and private individuals. The captain, himself, participated in a re-creation of the sighting. The conclusion of one very experienced investigator: the captain and his crew saw a fireball; a meteor, a piece of interplanetary rock that catches fire when it passes through the Earth's atmosphere. A meteor shower was under way at the time this incident occurred. And most of us have seen meteors; we call them shooting stars. Scientists have learned that it's almost impossible to judge distance when you're in the air, so the crew could have made an honest mistake and thought the meteor was much closer than it was. Now, immediately after the incident, the crew tried to radio airports in Cleveland, Akron and Columbus, but they weren't able to make contact. But later investigators show there was no mystery. The helicopter, at its low altitude, was simply too far from these airports. The same investigator says the captain might have thought he was diving down, but he probably pulled back on the stick and raised the helicopter when he jerked back to look at the meteor.

Martin: So it might have been a meteor, but you can't be sure?

Glenn: Not 100 per cent sure. But remember, there was a meteor shower in Ohio at the time. This sighting has been investigated more than once and all the evidence says, "Meteor."

Rebuttal: It was at this point in the program that CBS openly twisted facts and conveniently ignored crucial observations to fit their purpose. Here emotional prejudice and personal bias take their toll. For these reasons, this rebuttal will be given in three parts.

PART 1 THE SIGHTING: What actually occurred

October 18th, 1973, Captain Lawrence J. Coyne, commander of the 316th Medivac Unit U.S. Army Reserve, based at Hopkins International Airport, Cleveland, Ohio, and three reservists, all aboard a Bell UH-1H helicopter, departed from Columbus at 10:30 P.M. for a return trip to Cleveland. Captain Coyne was the pilot, Lt. Arrigo D. Jezzi was the co-pilot. Coyne is a veteran military pilot and a very qualified observer.

Chronology of Events:

At 11:15 P.M. the helicopter was flying at 2,500 feet on a northeast course about 10 miles east of Mansfield when the crew chief, E5 Robert J. Yanacsek, reported a red light about 5 miles to the east. At first the crew thought it was a radio beacon.

Yanacsek advised, "The light is moving. It is coming at us. It's on a collision course."

Coyne grabbed the controls from his co-pilot. "It looked like a fighter plane coming straight for us," Coyne said. "I took immediate evasive action. I cut the power and dropped into a shallow dive. We dropped through 2,000 feet, and it was heading right for us. We braced for impact."

Just as collision seemed certain, the object came to a dead stop, and the crew got a real look at their "bogey". Coyne described the craft: "It was un-real. It was unlike anything produced on earth—cigar shaped with a glowing steady red light on its leading edge. A hull was at the very top of it, and a green light emitted from the rear of the craft filled our cabin with a green glow. It was eerie."

Coyne tried radio contact with Mansfield tower. Negative.

With the green light still illuminating the helicopter, Coyne looked at his instruments. His altimeter was rising. "I could hardly believe it was reading 3,500 feet, climbing to 3,800. I made no attempt to pull up. All controls were set for a 20-degree dive, yet we had climbed from 1,500 to 3,800 feet with no power in a matter of a couple of seconds with no G-forces or other noticeable strains," Coyne said. (Such a rate of ascent is impossible for a helicopter that takes a full minute to climb 2,000 feet under maximum power.)

Then the crew "felt a bounce," and the other craft shot off in a northeastern direction.

PART 2 THE EXPLANATION: was it a meteor?

Despite the CBS claim that the UFO "disappears to the west," neither Christopher Glenn nor Carol Martin were aboard the Bell UH-1H. The fact of the case is that the object approached from the east, moved on a westerly course until it was above the helicopter, then zipped off to the northeast.

A check with Paul Oles confirmed my suspicions: meteors simply do not hover nor pull ninety-degree turns! Mr. Paul Oles is Director of Programs with Pittsburgh's Buhl Planetarium. As to the fact that a "meteor shower in Ohio" was underway, first of all, meteor showers are not localized phenomena which occur only over certain towns or states, and only on occasion. More than 100,000,000 bombard the earth every day, and there are meteor showers of greater or lesser intensity occurring year-round with nine showers taking prominence.

Besides, the detailed testimony of the crew indicates that this was anything but a meteor.

PART 3 THE INCONSISTENCES: CBS vs facts

CBS had played down the Coyne case in its debunking attempt in many ways. First, they ignored the color change and detailed description given by the crew. CBS carefully worded their report so that a meteor would be the only obvious explanation. They claimed that the object headed west, giving it a straight-line trajectory typical of meteors. They also altered the chronological sequence of events, played up the meteor shower "in Ohio" angle, said that Coyne probably pulled back on the stick when he jerked back to look at the meteor. Nothing could be further from the truth.

Final note: According to an Army spokesman at the Pentagon in Washington, "The Incident is described in our records as the sighting of an Unidentified Flying Object."

Back to the CBS show

Glenn: ...And we'll be back in a moment with the most amazing film of an Unidentified Flying Object ever seen, until it was identified.

It was at this point in the program that the Jean Oldfield UFO motion pictures were shown to the television audience. Glenn: Well that was the best film ever taken of an Unidentified Flying Object. (Glenn then went on to report on how that particular film was identified as the reflection of the an airliner's tail assembly reflected on the window.)

Rebuttal: Granted, CBS, your explanation of the Oldfield film is probably correct. But that film is certainly not "the best film ever taken" of a UFO. Not by a long shot.

From thousands of photos taken of UFOs scientists can explain away 80 percent of them...what about the other 20 percent?

There are films that have been given every test by military and civilian researchers alike; the verdict: the objects depicted on these films are, and remain, unidentified. Among them are the following:

- Al Hixenbaugh, Louisville, Kentucky, June 1950
- Nick Marina, Great Falls, Montana, August 1950
- Delbert C. Newhouse, Utah, July 2, 1952
- Clifford DeLacy, Hawaii, January 3, 1958
- James McDivitt, while orbiting Earth, June 1965
- The Santa Catalina film
- Hollywood film crew, November 1, 1967
- Michael Bonne, France, March 31, 1974
- The Oak Ridge, Tennessee film, 1973

EDITOR'S NOTE: We agree with Mr. Robert A. Goerman. CBS has a responsibility to report the truth, and the above program is obviously, far from the truth. □

BY VINCENT BARNES

I'm sure that no one who saw this UFO will deny their eyes, nor their memory. They'll never forget it; I know because I was there. I'm an executive for an American oil company and was in Kuwait, a 6,532 square mile country in the Middle East, on business.

I had driven out to one of the oil fields owned by my firm which is approximately 90 miles from the nation's capital, Umm Alaish. I had made the little trip many, many times before. This time, I had some papers to give to the head technician, requiring his signature.

It was just as I was driving up to the main building when I first saw the strange aircraft. As I watched it descend, several others, including some American employees, stopped to watch the fascinating and awesome sight.

God, it was bigger than a 747—maybe twice the size—and round. It was a very bright silver in color, with a huge dome on top, and flashing red lights.

I just stood there gawking, my mouth wide open, not knowing what was happening. The strange craft had no wings and no visible surface controls. At least none that I could see. Immediately, everybody that at first had gathered in bewilderment, now started running from the object. I ducked down behind a low cement wall which leads to the base's communications system.

I don't mind admitting I was scared. But there's something I'm good at—controlling my emotions, my fears included. And that's what I did. I popped my head over the wall to see what was going on.

Most of the workers were out of sight, and all I was able to make out were several men in the distance running away from the thing which had actually touched down.

The dome of this object turned, or should I say rotated, and as it did so, a window came into view. Protruding from this window was a large tube. I figured it was some sort of weapon (from knowledge of the many sci-fi films I'd seen in my time) and it was pointing straight at me. I crawled away and managed to get myself into the communications building.

I turned to some fellow who was seated at a desk, his face glued to the company's communication board, obviously trying to contact someone on the radio. His eyes looked downcast as he turned toward me. "It's useless. There's just no juice. Everything's simply gone dead."

Suddenly, a brilliant blue light filled the entire room. It was so bright that we all had to close our eyes and raise our hands over our faces.

Curiosity is my middle name, I must say here and now. Even as a kid, when the other fellows and I would walk home from school and pass a ladder, which would be standing beside a building, they'd scowl and quiver and walk around it. I never did. I'd just walked under it. Just to see what would happen. Nothing ever did.

With that same curiosity, I walked over to the door and pulled it open. That blue light was coming from the tube which was sticking out from the little window in its dome. That light was aimed straight at me. There was no time to duck. I simply spotted it too late. I felt a strange feeling come over me as the light hit me, bathing me, making my whole body feel weak, my head spinning, arms and legs heavy, my eyes drowsy.

The dome then started to turn. I was able to make that out. Or, rather, it opened up, as it turned, to reveal an inner dome made of something transparent. I couldn't make out what. And then I saw the figures. They looked human, and at the same time they looked alien. They just waved to me, at least in my drowsy condition that's what it seemed like. And so, in somewhat of a drunken stupor, I waved back.

All of a sudden the place where I stood started to rise and make some sort of humming noise, but one I'd never heard before. It almost sounded musical.

A SPECIAL REPORT

Flying saucer seen in Kuwait

Kuwait (UPI)—The first-ever flying saucer in Kuwait came without sound, was as big as a jumbo jet, cylindrical, with a huge dome and a flashing red light. After seven minutes in a Kuwaiti oil field, it took off without a trace, said seven Kuwait Oil Co. technicians, including one American, who claimed they saw it.

The mysterious object reportedly landed Friday about 90 miles from the capital at Umm Alais, causing temporary disruption of telecommunications and the operations of an oil pumping station about 250 yards from the landing site. After seven minutes on the ground, it took off without leaving a trace.

The dome on the object rotated and as it did so, a window came into view—protruding from the window was a tube which looked like it might have been some sort of weapon

TERROR IN KUWAIT

Kahlil Gibran predicted before Alex Tanous was born that he would be a man with exceptional gifts and great abilities. In the palm of his left hand he has the perfect hexagram (six-pointed star) and the mystical cross. His mother and father were both gifted psychics of Lebanese extraction who helped to develop and unfold the paranormal gifts of young Alex.

His academic background is very impressive, consisting of three Master's Degrees and a Ph.D. in psychology, and a Doctorate of Divinity. He studied at Our Lady of Holy Cross Seminary at Stonehill College. He attended Boston College, Fordham University, the Divinity College of Indiana, and the University of Maine. Do we have here an educated Uri Geller?

I had wanted to meet Dr. Alex Tanous for some time, after hearing about the fantastic feats he has done—such as being able to look directly into the sun without going blind, projecting visible images from his eyes and creating photographic balls of light in totally dark rooms. He has predicted many events before they happened. On one occasion, he left his body under rigorous scientific controls, projected himself to another room, moved an object in that room, and returned.

Alex Tanous has helped police locate lost objects, missing or kidnapped people. He has tra-

“I believe that UFOs have always been there and that we are just now becoming aware of them.”

By Bryce Bond

veled backwards in time to view past events while they were happening, and then returned to tell about them in incredible detail—details only an actual observer could have known. Dr. Tanous has diagnosed illness before it was detected by medical doctors. He has caused lights to go out in rooms, buildings, and even an entire town, simply by willing them out. Cameras of all descriptions, tape recorders, and watches have been broken without anyone touching them. He has made contact several times with an energy that he believes cannot be from the world we know.

Alex Tanous has “depsyched” houses occupied by poltergeists. He has duplicated many of these feats time and time again in a scientific laboratory under tightly controlled conditions.

Alex Tanous has been studied by and worked with the Navy Department, American Society of Psychical Research, Kent State University, and the Institute for Bioenergetic Analysis. He has taught theology at Manhattan College and St. John's University in Brooklyn. He is also author of a new book called Beyond Coincidence, in which many of the unexplained physical feats are finally accounted for—a thrilling book on psychic phenomena. Most exciting of all, Alex has formulated a general theory for paranormal abilities. Using this theory he has been able to teach others to duplicate his feats.

Dr. Alex Tanous and I met at the appointed time at 12:00 noon at the American Society of Psychical Research. Its atmosphere was right and very conducive for an interview with this very likable warm personality. As I sat across the table in the second-floor library with a cup of coffee in my hand, I noticed, and felt a great deal of energy. His dark, deep-set eyes seemed to penetrate through every atom of my being.

I had heard about his prediction of events before they happened. Now I wanted Alex Tanous to give me his predictions, psychic impressions on the subject of UFOs, unidentified flying objects. We both knew that there has been a tremendous rash of sightings around the world. I wanted to know the reason for this giant influx, and why they were coming in this period of time.

Alex stated, "I don't think they're just in this period of time, Bryce. I believe that they were always there and we are just becoming aware of them, like we're just becoming aware of psychics. I believe they existed from all times, and they were here to help us from all times. I once wrote an article called 'Why 40,000 Men Disappear Each Year,' but I never did mention that many of these people came to mate, and did not succeed in mating, and their disappearance was because they were from other planets."

"Could they also be from other dimensions?" I asked.

Alex answered, "Yes, many dimensions! For they can take on the human form. The mind can create any form you want. My other physical self...my mind was what created it for those people to see."

I chimed in with, "But you're all together today?"

Alex smiled when he said,

"Yes!...I think I am. But again, Bryce, I'm merely saying that these UFO sightings are not new. And I don't believe in every sighting, either. There are so many. So many false ones!"

"Alex, what do you think happened on December 5, 1945, to that ill-fated Flight 19 in the Bermuda Triangle? Have you ever projected your astral body back to that period of time to find out what really happened?"

"Well, Bryce, I spent 15 days in the Bermuda Triangle making a movie, which, by the way, should be out shortly. I think it's going to be called Above, Beyond and Below the Bermuda Triangle. I went with two physicists, Woodrow Franklin from Kent State and Dr. Shay Speath, a great inventor in his own right. He had worked for a number of years with cybernetics in Washington, D. C. We had the oceanographer Jim Thorn and his associate, a woman psychic from Kent State University. And we got all kinds of unusual things. I have a hundred hours of tape that would be too long to tell you about."

I said, "Alex! We'll be happy with a couple of short paragraphs."

"First of all, let me put it this way," he answered. "What happened here was that Isaac Newton had come to me telepathically before I went on the trip, and said that the whole thing had to do with the zero point in the Bermuda Triangle. As we went along filming, suddenly Isaac Newton appeared in my mind and gave me the whole formula that was used by Einstein, about the minus zero. And if you went into this minus zero or got caught in it, it's then that things disintegrate and disappear. We can call it 'dimensional.' We almost went into that zero or just above it. We hit a storm and everything happened. The physicists did find a magnetic field that is not registered but showed on our gauss meter. One of the things shows that it has something to do with the magnetic field.

"The other thing that Isaac Newton told me was that the energies of the universe would gather there in a sort of convergence, and then would explode...and some of these things would happen, such as the disappearance of Flight 19, and crews vanishing from their ships. Then he told me to take a map and extend the Bermuda Triangle all the way to the Bay of Fundy. It seems that this magnetic field is only one of many energy pockets around the world.

"It came time for my experiment of projecting my astral body to the bottom of the Sargasso Sea. I did see some unusual debris. But what was most interesting was this road, on which I saw many people and buildings all white. It was strange, but very beautiful. Through the higher consciousness of my astral body, I physically spoke with these beings. They showed me an existence there under the sea."

My mind raced with excitement as I thought of the book written by Ivan T. Sanderson, called Invisible Residents, where he postulates the theory of colonizations under the sea, far more advanced than we are, because they have had more time to evolve.

Alex continued, "I felt that there have been other civilizations before this one, much like the ancient Atlanteans. They were all dressed in white, and they said they had converged there from all over. They didn't say just the world...they said from all over."

"I know, Alex, that you can project yourself both forward and backwards in time. When you had this astral flight, was it in the now? Could it have been into the future? Could it be a different vibration, or states of vibrations, or an alternate reality or maybe a parallel existence or both?"

"From what I could gather, Bryce, it could be all. It seems that I had turned the hands of time and was living at a time when these people existed. That's as I see it now. It was a city of men. There were no women and no children, and no children had ever been born there. What women they had were hidden and used only as servants. The strange thing was that they had nothing to do with the original complex of this city. They showed me something that looked like a pyramid building with writing on it. There were two lines and the only things I could make out were a bird and a tree. Later I also came across this column.

"The amazing thing is that when I later came back to New York to give a lecture, I found out that a friend of mine, Dr. Zink, who had a grant to do research in the Bermuda Triangle area, had been at the same place I was. And he did find these objects. He found the column and brought it to the museum. Quite a few things were found and recovered. It is reported that they also found the crystal, but psychically I'm not convinced.

"Although I was at the bottom of that ocean, the Sargasso Sea had a lot of light. There were tunnels, black tunnels that I did not go into. I saw the people; they were like you and I. They were black and brown and every conceivable color. They were human in form and structure."

"Alex, the United States Navy reported that Flight 19 crashed at sea. You were in the area of Flight 19. Did you ever project your astral body to that time and place, to find out what really happened?"

"Bryce, from what I could gather—and I base it on the Einstein knowledge that Isaac Newton gave to me—at the point where they got to minus zero, they

In northern West Germany, State Road Number Six runs diagonally southeast to northwest from the city of Hanover to Bremen. Approximately half-way between the two cities the road cuts out, veers sharply to the left for half a mile and then stops abruptly before an estuary which forms an arc to cross a great arm of water—the Weser River. At this point the town of Gienburg is located.

Gienburg isn't very large. It has no claim to fame. Its history isn't replete with those doing daring deeds. Gienburg hasn't turned out anyone who would find a place in an encyclopedia. It hasn't made any niche to speak of in music, the arts or sciences. Neither has it ever contributed any of its sons or daughters to any place of prominence in the world.

Gienburg, in short, is a simple German town inhabited by hard-working and industrious people. It is a God-fearing community much like any other across the massive continent of Europe. However, there are many in Gienburg who are of the firm belief—in view of recent happenings—that God has abandoned their city and has relegated his nemesis to rule in his place.

For there is one thing which sets the village of Gienburg apart from any other town or village in Germany — perhaps the world; one of its inhabitants is haunted. Although not by the restless dead known to send shivers down one's spine as they prowl the night in the wake of the howling wind rustling through the trees.

Gienburg's haunting is of another sort: extraterrestrials who say they have visited our earth countless centuries before the city of Nienburg, or, for that matter, even Germany ever existed.

hectic for nine-year-old Hildy Brauer, a highly-sensitive third-grader, her family and neighbors.

When the "hauntings" began some six months ago, the disturbances were mild in comparison to what they are today, resembling those of initial Poltergeist disturbances. Glasses in the Brauer Kitchen would suddenly shatter. The telephone would ring and no one would be at the other end of the line. Each time the phone rang, the toilet would flush of its own accord. Bric-a-brac all over the house would go sailing about from room to room.

After a while more violent outbreaks began. Dresser drawers opened and closed whenever Hildy would be about. Furniture toppled over and on one occasion Harold Brauer, Hildy's father, had a leg broken by a falling grandfather clock. Mirrors, as well as glass encased photographs suddenly fell and shattered. When the family would return home, after being out for some time, furniture in several rooms would be completely rearranged.

When the voices came, it was decided to visit Father Gustav in Hanover to secure permission from the Arch Bishop to have the premises exorcised. The voices were heard only by Hildy at the beginning. They were not loud like most of the other disturbances in the Brauer household. They were not abusive but rather soft and gentle.

They called Hildy by name. Whispering, at first, for her ears alone, of the stars, of life-holding planets and planetoids countless light years from Earth. They spoke of journeys back and forth across the stars in their sophisticated craft eons before Jesus walked the roads of Judea.

The voices told Hildy of the pyramids of Egypt and South America, and how they were constructed. Their complicated mathematical formula was handed down to us from those who crossed the continent to survive the inundations of Atlantis.

The voices spoke of sophisticated propulsion systems as yet unknown to our most brilliant scientific minds—propulsion system able to span the galaxies from planet to planet faster than the speed of light.

After a while the voices became more than whispers and, on one or two occasions, Hildy's father, and her uncle Julius, said they heard them also.

"I was awakened in the middle of the night—it must have been two or three in the morning, proclaimed Julius Hammarmeyer, a recently retired insurance salesman who was visiting with his family in Gienburg. "I heard voices—men's voices—and they seemed to be coming from Hildy's room."

Hammarmeyer told how he had strained his ears at the walls, listening. He told this reporter: "The voices were coming from Hildy's room—or seemed to—and yet it was as though they were emanating from all over the house—from within the very walls, the floors and ceilings themselves."

Hammarmeyer went on: "I walked down the corridor to where Hildy's room was situated. I saw my sister and brother-in-law listening at the door. The voices were the same as I heard in my room. There were three distinct voices. My sister, Gersula, said she was able to make out four. Harold told of two. But I distinctively differentiated three."

Although the trio could not agree on how many voices there were, they were positive they were all male voices, speaking in a tone above a whisper. They also agreed that the name "Jupiter" was mentioned more than once, and numbers—algebraic symbols and sines and cosines normally used to solve geometric problems.

"If indeed the house was 'haunted' by space entities," voiced Harold Brauer in a puzzled tone, "who desired to get some sort of message across, especially one which involved complicated mathematical equations, why on earth would they use a little girl? Why a child not yet out of elementary school rather than someone much older, and with a scientific background who would readily be able to intelligently understand what they were saying and would logically be able to communicate in return?"

Father Gustav, whom the family sought for advice, introduced the Brauers to Dr. Werner Havermeyer of Berlin University, his long-time friend and a professor of physics.

The priest told the Brauers, "If indeed supernatural forces are at work, which earlier Poltergeist-like disturbances would indicate, then we should go immediately to seek permission from His Eminence for an exorcism ritual.

"However," he brought out, "if extraterrestrial activity somehow is zeroing in on the Brauer household, using little Hildy as a 'natural medium', then an exorcism will do no good."

Father Gustav maintained that children are usually the source of these disturbances—not of extraterrestrial but of actual hauntings—perhaps due to their innocence and sensitivity.

After a mental and physical examination of Hildy, Dr. Havermeyer, working very closely with professor Anton Gebrich and Dr. Heinrich Schwazbaum, eminent parapsychologists, revealed that

THE GALACTIC CLUB

BY S.B. MILCARTZ

Many science fiction writers have dwelt upon the idea of a "Galactic Club," an interstellar community comprised of a myriad of advanced technological civilizations. The word "club" immediately suggests some kind of exclusivity, as indeed it is meant to; for only those civilizations which have achieved, not only a technological, but an ethical maturity would be admitted. Does such a galactic club exist? If so, how does it tie in with the question of UFOs?

Researchers have been unable to find a reason why UFO occupants usually do not contact us. Within this mass of negative information, the important clues that we need might be found.

A large number of reports of UFO landings tell of humanoid aliens behaving as if human beings were to be feared or ignored. These landings do not in the least appear to be missions of exploration. For logistical reasons they cannot be. The scenes have all the appearances of being staged to convey a brief but concrete picture.

People report UFO occupants seeming to repair their craft, or seeming to gather samples of leaves and stones, or just being outside the craft. In most cases the occupants leave hurriedly, or even in panic when they notice the witness. In other instances, they paralyze the witness, hurriedly complete their activities and leave. In no proper sense do these scenes involve exchange between the occupants and the witness. If UFO occupants are alien visitors, they are making it painfully obvious that they do not care for us. What would be the point of coming all the way here, just to tell us that? The question can be put in a way that raises the real issue. How many superior alien peoples would be concerned about humanity at this moment, and why?

Stars that can support life on their planets generally do so for an average of 15 billion years. Depending on how (turn page) old most of these stars might be, their planets could be at any stage in a long period of evolution. It is very unlikely that two worlds of different stars are at approximately the same stage of evolution or anywhere near it. We then could say that our critical period is from 1900 A.D. to 2100 A.D. During this time we either do or do not take our wars and intolerance into the alien sphere. It need not be more than another hundred years before we reach the same limits their technology has reached. Our threat to them in the meantime could be grave.

The critical period on other worlds might also be about 200 years. Either the inhabitants acquire the means to travel quickly to the stars in that period, or they fail to do so and exhaust their physical resources, so that they are no longer a threat to anyone.

We can say that on the average, one out of every 25 million or more worlds is at this critical stage of development. It could be that as many as 100 worlds inhabited by superior aliens are concerned by our potential threat to them right at this moment. They will be fervently hoping that we will stay on our own world until we learn to mend our ways. Their very number would allow as many as 10 thousand different designs of UFOs to be seen in any one year, with no repetition from year to year. It would also mean that the variety of UFO occupants would be enormous. This is exactly the case of reported UFO encounters. If superior aliens have achieved the technology to reduce the mass and inertia of their ships to zero, they can travel at the speed of light. This reduces the problems of travel time greatly. Such an achievement seems to be within the reach of our modern physics. Reported UFO maneuvers fit this theory. We can grant, then, that superior aliens can come here in great numbers, and easily.

It remains for us to deduce their motives. This can be done only if human social problems are taken into account. Superior alien intelligence must begin its history with exactly these same problems. There are many reasons why it cannot be otherwise.

In short, we have obtained our present technology and knowledge precisely because of the pressures our faults have put upon us. Now, however, this is no longer safe or desirable. Our planet is divided into nations, between some of which there is a perilous and continuous state of hostility. Within each nation there are mutually hostile classes, factions, cliques, communities, and subcultures. Even mutually hostile religions have themselves split into mutually hostile sects. Efforts to reunite are generally futile.

In both the Third World and the west, proper distinctions are not made among technological advance, social liberation, and cultural values. This makes westerners, especially, unduly chauvinistic. Among most nations there is generally no mutual appreciations of cultural values.

We are therefore not at all in a very good position to appreciate alien cultural values. We are not at all likely to think that the superior alien view of our society is reasonable. Many of us can of course easily guess what they will think of us, but being actually confronted with alien judgment is quite a different matter. Between the anticipation and the situation, there is a wide mental and emotional gap.

As adults, human beings maintain very rigid ideas and are hardly aware of doing so. We do not fully know how to deal with this situation because our respect for individual beliefs trips us up. That is but one of the many reasons why our response to UFO reports has been so hopeless. Instead of searching for practical responses to UFO reports, disbelievers, cultists, and serious investigators have been irrelevantly at loggerheads. In this sort of situation our rigidities, rivalries, and monopolies would prevent the truth from penetrating our society, regardless of what the truth about UFOs might be.

If aliens desiring maturity wanted to have a pleasant and peaceful future, they would have to overcome their own racism, senseless conformism, cultural chauvinism, nationalism, ideological intolerance, greed for status, incapacity for love, and most important of all, their inability to face the reality of their own limitations. These awful failings stand in the way of the true liberation of the individual and society. They trample over the wise use of resources that this liberation requires. These faults are due partly to history and partly to the original animal nature of an intelligent people. In a world at the stage of our earth's evolution, mechanization and over population are completely out of step with biological evolution.

Animal nature is useful for a very primitive society. Indeed, it is essential to survival. In an industrial and heavily populated world, our crude animal nature is no longer helpful. It threatens to become a terrible hindrance and a hazard. The most dangerous way in which our animal nature works against us is when we believe what we want to believe instead of facing facts. In order to survive, even an intelligent extraterrestrial would have to realize that there is a path to an intelligent and happy future, a path which requires that the nature of the people be changed altogether. If UFO occupants were highly intelligent aliens who had not changed their natures for the better, we would have been exploited and enslaved long ago. If they had exploited and enslaved us they would sit on our heads instead of diverting great energy to breeze in and out of our atmosphere like fugitives and ghosts. In addition, our planet would be a continuous battlefield between rival alien factions—which it is not. If UFO occupants are real aliens, they must be ethically superior to us.

A world of mature people could plan its life for billions of years into the future. Although the vast space around a star with planets, we believe, contains many sunless planetary bodies, the resources available from these would still require a reduction of population on the home world. Only then could resources be used no faster than nature replaced them. An alien planet could support as many as fifty million people in palatial comfort for billions of years. To grow beyond this in population will mean problems. The limits to growth of agriculture are but one factor.

We have no justification for our childish belief that resources are unlimited or that sources of energy unknown to us exist to support more people. To suppose that psychic powers can make something out of nothing is not justified. There is no evidence that science could go beyond Einstein's Unified Field Theory. The real barrier to our further advance in science is increasing vagueness of data. This is why technically superior aliens need not be more than 200 years in advance of ourselves, if that much. That they may be billions of years ahead of us as people is another matter.

Billions of years of static but mature civilization would be mostly rural. Intelligent, sophisticated beings would have all their amenities in the countryside. The real pleasures of life are in the very web of life itself, and never in a city. We have not yet learned how to transplant urban amenities into the backwoods. We seem to prefer automobile exhaust to clean air.

One of the major epochs in any alien existence is precisely when their planet reaches the stage which earth has reached. Our planet is absurdly overpopulated and driven by a mad greed for resources. It is choked by alienating cities, intolerance, and hostility. No superior aliens would dare allow us anywhere near them. How, then, are we to be reconciled with them?

Pleasant life on a mature world is safe only if all other intelligent beings are themselves mature. Exchange between these mature beings separated by vast distances is possible because of openness to alien values. Safety is assured only when no beings capable of interstellar travel are still at the stage of being aggressive in nature.

If the Galactic Club is a real thing, then membership in it is based upon three requirements. An intelligent people must reduce its population drastically, use its resources wisely, and develop a truly civilized disposition. Any new planet (such as our earth) which does not fulfill these requirements is a menace to all the others. But if we were regarded as a menace, it would be very likely that we would have been destroyed by now.

Could it be that the superior aliens have selfish motives? Why else would they leave their home planets to spend time around the disheartening human scene instead of getting rid of it and going back home? The only possible explanation is that in a galactic community, every civilization is capable of contributing unique talents which could enrich and diversify all the other cultures. Thus, it is to the advantage of the superior aliens if we manage somehow to mend our ways.

Many scientist now believe that there must be an enormous number of worlds that can support intelligent beings. Evidence from many sciences support this idea. We must therefore look upon the Galactic community as a very real possibility. Any objection to this view would if the aliens wanted us to develop to maturity, why would they not intervene now to prevent us from failing. There are several valid reasons why their interference should be minimal. Alien advice to us would not be readily followed. Many of us would refuse to understand it. It would be suspected of being a way to fatten us for the kill. Those of us who prefer simple lies to the complex truth would happily listen to irresponsible fanatics and false messiahs. Our civilization would

May 12, 1974: Thirty-nine students in a Miami, Florida elementary school were rehearsing a musical play. Abruptly one of the students, Lisa Edney, fainted. Within minutes the entire class became ill. Time: around ten a.m.

Immediately fire and ambulance services were notified and dispatched to the school. The entire student body—a total of 450—was evacuated from the building. When officials arrived, they began searching for a suspected gas leak, which, it was theorized, could be traced to a broken main. No such leak was found.

Meanwhile other investigators wondered if a newly laid library carpet might have affected the students. It was reported that the carpet did have an "overpowering smell." Unfortunately, this was but another unfounded theory; the students had not been anywhere near the library.

Even the cafeteria food was suspect. That too was ruled out, because the early hour had not allowed students time to eat.

Dr. Joel Nitzking of Florida's

Dade County Health Department was called in for consultation, and remarked to other authorities that the "spreading ailment was 'mass hysteria' caused by a hyperventilation syndrome." Nitzking was also reported by wire services as saying the syndrome isn't common "but it's been known to happen in school situations." He added, "The quick breathing causes a quick loss of carbon dioxide and upsets the blood chemistry." The health official concluded that although the problem was chiefly psychological, "they really did feel illness."

Eight of the students were treated for nausea, faintness, and headaches, and later released in good condition. Dr. Daniel Wuensch of the North Miami General Hospital was the physician reported to have treated the students. Wuensch, after thoroughly examining the children, reached a conclusion that was somewhat removed from the original thoughts of rescue workers. He said, "More likely an explanation is that these children were exposed to some toxic gas."

Which leads to the question—exactly what type of gas leaked and why were rescuers unable to locate the source?

February 20, 1974: The San Francisco Examiner reported that a large number of people were watching a Walt Disney double feature in Chicago's Riveria Theater. Unexpectedly 54 of those persons, most of them children, were overcome with dizziness, vomiting and headaches, and finally collapsed.

According to police reports, the theater-goers were allegedly affected by carbon dioxide which "had leaked into the theater." No medical consultants were reported to have confirmed the police explanation.

December 30, 1973: An Associated Press wire story described another "mass illness" affecting persons at a Gillespie, Illinois movie theater. According to that report, 84 viewers (again most of them teenagers and youngsters) were overcome with the now familiar pattern of "nausea, headaches, and dizziness."

Again only eight of those affected were taken to hospitals for treatment, and later released in good condition. Dr. Lee Johnson, a traumma surgeon at St. Francis Hospital in nearby Litchfield, Illinois, was quoted by the press as saying he "didn't rule out the possibility of 'mass hysteria,' but was awaiting the results of medical tests."

BY CURTIS K. SUTHERLY

Macoupin County Sheriff, Richard Zarr didn't agree with Dr. Johnson's hypothesis, however. "It wasn't any kind of follow-the-leader type thing," he said. "Seven or eight people were lying on the sidewalk in front of the show. These people were actually passed out. We were reviving them with oxygen and everything else."

The sheriff reported that the viewers began feeling ill during the movie showing, and as soon as they left the theater for air, collapsed onto the sidewalks.

Officials felt that a "foreign substance" could have been injected into the theater ventilating system. No results on the actual findings—if any—were made known.

April 13, 1969: Approximately 20 teenagers were affected by the same mysterious illness during a showing of the movie, Romeo and Juliet. The place in question: Paradise Theater in Faribault, Minnesota.

Kirk Dean, a 21-year-old senior at St. Olaf College who had been escorting his lady friend out of the building, was quoted as saying "My girl friend was fine until she got outside. She took a whiff of fresh air and keeled over. Most of them [the other victims] were like that," he said.

The affected persons were taken by ambulance to Rice County Hospital, but were "soon released after a dose of oxygen."

Power company officials and police and firemen who examined the theater afterward suspected, as usual, a gas leak. They found none.

Whatever the cause of these accounts of group sickness, one thing can be safely assumed: Every case cited above is obviously interrelated. Nearly all the victims were young, 21 or younger. The same symptoms were exhibited in every instance—nausia, vomiting, headaches, and finally faintness. Interestingly enough, the ill-struck seem to have been affected worse after leaving the respective buildings and breathing outside air. Equally interesting is that in two of the four cases I mentioned, only eight of the many victims were actually hospitalized. This makes one wonder how many people may have been treated in the two cases not so thoroughly documented.

In the May, 1974 issue of Prevention, that magazine commented on an attack of nausea and dizziness experienced by British school children. The children were performing in a youth parade featuring "hundreds of kazoo players." Again, physicians declared the incident as nothing more than an attack of "juvenile hysteria."

A David Anderson of Miller Falls, Massachusetts, wrote to Prevention and commented that a few years ago, a French scientist was working on "a sonic weapon that could kill at ranges of five miles." That scientist is one professor Gavraud, according to Lyall Wilson, in his book Supernature.

According to Wilson, Gavraud was experiencing attacks of nausea whenever in his Marseilles penthouse office. Eventually he traced the nausea to an air conditioning unit in another room which was causing his entire office to vibrate at the rate of seven cycles per second.

Gavraud began carrying out experiments using high frequency sound. This led to the designing of all things—a six-foot police whistle powered by compressed air. When the whistle was "fired" for the first time, the technician pulling the trigger dropped dead. An autopsy revealed his internal organs "had been mashed into an amorphous jelly by the vibrations." Fortunately, this sort of thing is very rare.

Apparently sound isn't the only effect which can cause nausea and faintness. Wilson also reported in Supernature that during 1946, one Grey Walter began experimenting with light flashes of a regular nature.

A flicker of between 8 and 12 cycles per second was found to cause a seizure similar to an epileptic fit. Walters reported that one person in 20 is affected by light flicker, sometimes inducing less than an epileptic seizure but stimulating a feeling of nausea and light-headedness instead.

That sonics or cycled light may play a part in the reports documented above seems apparent. Or does it? Why, for instance, did the phenomenon single out teenagers and youngsters? Surely sound or light patterns wouldn't differentiate between 21-year-old Kirk Dean and his 18-year-old girl friend? Or is a few years of physical maturity vital to an immunity against such attacks?

Then, too, there are the reports of people collapsing after leaving the buildings. Why pass out then, when removed from the course of the irritation?

One possible explanation for all this may be an atmospheric deficiency within the affected building. Just possibly, a gas had been—in some manner—removed from the air. An abrupt return of the removed element into the human system could have induced a kind of shock, thus resulting in collapse. Like a person who has been airborn or at sea for a length of time and needs to regain his "land legs," the individual deprived of a normally present (but not necessarily essential) element must be reoriented to its return. Scuba divers undergo something of this sort while using a prepared breathing mixture for deep diving. On returning to the surface, they must adjust slowly or suffer the consequences.

The fearful thing about all this is that if indeed some element is being removed from the air under certain circumstances, or if light flicker or sonic waves are being broadcast in whatever fashion, who or what is creating the problem? It's almost as if some new technique in biological warfare were being tested. A sound notion is that perhaps we should find out before too long. □

Radio Communication With Space People

Strange signals have been coming from outer space. Are other civilizations from other worlds trying to contact us? We have been receiving these strange signals since the invention of radio. Nikola Tesla and Marconi were believers that another world somewhere in the cosmos is trying to contact our planet.

BY GEORGE WAGNER

Nikola Tesla, pioneer electronics technician, flashed radio messages from earth to outer space two years before Guglielmo Marconi transmitted his feeble signals across the Atlantic Ocean.

In 1899 Tesla constructed an interplanetary radio transmitter near Colorado Springs, Colorado. Power was driven through a gigantic Tesla coil, seventy-five feet in diameter, and flashed like lightning from a two hundred foot tower. A make-and-break device wired into the coil permitted the transmitting of messages in code.

During these experiments, Tesla began receiving codes on equipment at the Colorado station. While these weird sound-symbols were unintelligible to Tesla and his associates, they were of such a regular non-random nature as to be clearly artificial in origin. Tesla theorized that the signals may have come from Venus or Mars or even farther out in our solar system.

A code very similar to that received by Tesla was heard by Marconi radio stations in Europe just before the First World War, especially during 1919-1921.

On one occasion in 1920 the Italian inventor was vacationing in the Mediterranean Ocean aboard his 220-foot yacht, the Electra. Marconi used his leisure time to test high-powered radio equipment. It was on one such occasion that he became aware of strange coded signals.

Marconi said that the code was never used on earth, and that it was transmitted over a wavelength (2 kilocycles) ten times longer than could have lasted at that time, broadcasted by any terrestrial radio station. He believed that the messages came from outer space, possibly from the planet Mars.

On August 21, 1924, astronomers around the world prepared to observe the planet Mars. On August 22, the planet would swing closer to earth, an event that will not happen again for the next seventy-five years.

Professor David Todd, head astronomer at Amerst College,

Massachusetts, requested that for the period August 21-23, all high powered radio transmitters in all parts of the world shut down for five minutes every hour. During these periods of silence, Dr. Todd suggested that the radio bands should be combed for signals coming from outer space. Radio stations throughout the world, at the diplomatic nudgings of the United States Government went along with the Todd plan.

During these five minute segments, "strange noises" and "harsh dots" were received by monitors in the United States, Canada, England and France. Station WOR, Newark, New Jersey, received coded messages. Mysterious sounds were picked up on 10 kilocycles by a 24-tube receiving set manned by Marconi Company at Dulwich, England. Marconi spokesmen said the signals were not coming from any terrestrial transmitter.

The code was received at the Point Grey wireless station, Vancouver, British Columbia. It was also heard by the radio operator at the Vancouver Merchants exchange. It was revealed that the signals had been heard in the area since late July, almost every day at 6:20 and 7:12 a.m.

It has been insinuated that the Vancouver signals were actually the result of malfunctions of the Point Grey equipment. C.W. Mellish, head radio operator at the Point Grey station, insisted that "The signal has been noticed at the same hour practically every day for over four weeks. It is absolutely distinctive and cannot be attributed to any known instrument, static, or leaking transformers in Vancouver."

In addition to his broadcasting project, Professor Todd approached an inventor named Charles Francis Jenkins. Jenkins had developed the "Jenkins Radio Camera," a device that recorded radio signals on a thirty foot strip of paper tape.

This apparatus was tuned to 50 kilocycles. Impulses which came in over this frequency were printed upon the tape. When the tape was later examined, it was discovered to be covered with dots. Along one edge the dots were fairly evenly spaced but the dots along the other edge were so arranged as to make up crudely-pictured human faces!

Dr. Mansfield Robinson, a psychic researcher from Royden, England, tried to contact Mars by radio in 1926. He had previously received (he claimed) telepathic instructions in the matter from a big-eared Martian woman named "Compararu." Robinson said that his radio picked up the letter M and S in a special "Martian code."

The psychic researcher again attempted to contact Mars on October 24, 1928. His five word message was transmitted on 16.04 kilocycles by the powerful post office wireless station at Rugby, England. The British government charged Robinson the going rate for mundane messages...seven shillings, six pence; about $1.80 in American money at the 1928 rate of exchange.

Professor A.M. Low, an English scientist listening in on Robinson's broadcast, heard the Rugby trans-

OUR MYSTERIOUS SPACESHIP MOON

NASA scientists have made various models of the moon based on startling evidence brought back to earth by our astronauts. One model is a hollow moon with an outer layer of rock and a metal inner sphere. This is exactly what the Soviet Academy of Science think the moon may be.... nothing else but a spaceship!

BY HARRY BELIL

Don Wilson, author of the book "Our Mysterious Spaceship Moon", is an amateur astronomer whose lifelong intense interest in space had led him to write one of the most startling books dealing with our moon.

The book, an outgrowth of five years of research into the evidence uncovered by the Soviet and American space programs, is based on one of the most shocking theories of all times...the Soviet theory that our moon is not a completely natural planetoid but, a hollowed-out world that is in reality, a spaceship.

Wilson is a teacher with post-graduate degrees from the University of Michigan and the University of Detroit.

BR: Tell me Don, in your book you mention our astronauts spotting UFOs while in space. How many of them have reported these sightings?

WILSON: Amazingly, nearly all of them. The first to definitely see a UFO while in orbit was Major Gordon Cooper who during the Mercury flight 7, (May 15th 1963) while passing over Australia, sighted an unidentified flying object (called bogeys by NASA) approaching him. This particular UFO was also spotted by over 200 persons at the Muchea Tracking Station near Perth, Australia. Cooper said the object was of "good size" and claimed "it was higher than I was. It wasn't even in the vicinity of the horizon..." This indicated that it was not a natural object.

Later, in the Mercury astronauts' book We Seven, Cooper bluntly admitted that he believed UFOs exist. He was even to admit later that extraterrestrial astronauts also had visited earth in ancient times.

BR: Did any astronauts see any UFOs while on the surface of the moon?

WILSON: Yes, unquestionably, and one need look at the actual astronaut-mission control conversations to prove this. Although other astronauts like Major James McDivitt and Major Edward White, America's first astronauts to walk in space, actually photographed a glowing egg-shaped UFO. Pete Conrad and Gordon Cooper saw several UFOs on the Gemini 5 mission. Undoubtedly, the most startling and in my opinion, most important sightings were made by our Apollo astronauts on and around the moon.

Neil Armstrong and Buzz Aldrin on the very first moon landing expedition sighted an unusual bogey just one day out. My book gives an actual description of their sighting along with a little known NASA transcript of the technical debriefing session during which the astronauts tried to analyze their encounter with this space unknown.

Similar mission control conversations of Apollo 12, 15, 16 and 17 clearly indicate other sightings of UFOs made by Apollo Astronauts.

BR: If so many UFOs were sighted, why weren't these heard on the live telecasts of the trips to the moon?

WILSON: Some were, but most came at times when there was no live telecast. When the astronauts actually saw UFOs while their activites were being carried on live TV, NASA switched the telecast over to a private channel through a pre-arranged code. This is clear from the mission control conversations of the sightings.

Dr. Farouk El Baz, now with the Smithsonian Institute, admitted as much in a recent interview. Furthermore, Dr. James Harder of the University of California, came across these same sightings while reviewing mission-control conversations on tape. When NASA officials were asked by Dr. Harder to comment on them, they embarrassingly admitted that the astronauts did indeed sight UFOs on the moon trips.

BR: Why did NASA try to cover them up or keep them from the public?

WILSON: According to Harder, a NASA official said that it was because of "fear of public panic".

BR: Do you believe that UFOs may be based inside the moon?

WILSON: Yes, definitely. Very few people realize how many strange moving lights have been spotted on or around the moon, not only in recent decades but over the past several centuries as well. Astronomical journals all over the world are filled with hundreds of such reports. One recent survey of astronomical journals alone uncovered over 800 such reports. Another careful study of these done by Patrick Moore of the Amagh Planetarium in Northern Ireland and Barbara Middlehurst of the Planetary and Lunar Laboratory, University of Arizona, claims there are over 400 solid, unquestionable sightings of strange lunar lights and inexplicable lunar events of all kinds. In fact, even our government knows that something strange is going on. NASA actually commissioned a program called Operation Moon Blink, in which observatories around the world began a special search for such strange lights.

In a short time, ten such lunar phenomena were cited.

BR: The major thrust of your book with the theory of two Soviet scientists that the moon may be a spaceship sounds incredible. Why would two respected scientists from one of the world's leading scientific institutes come out with such an outlandish theory?

WILSON: Simply because the facts and the evidence indicates that the moon is just that-- a hollowed-out asteroid, fashioned by some unknown alien beings and steered into orbit around the earth eons ago.

BR: What evidence do they offer to back their claim?

WILSON: First and foremost, a from our Orbiter program leads to the frightening possibility that the moon is hollow.

BR: Why should such a discovery be frightening?

WILSON: Because if it is hollow then the moon must be some kind of spaceship that has been created by an unknown alien intelligence. If this is true, such a discovery would have frightening implications for man and his world. I might add that seismic evidence from the moon also indicates that the moon is hollow and, believe it or not--has an inner shell of metal.

BR: What seismic evidence exists that the moon is hollow?

WILSON: On our trips to the moon we placed sensitive seismometers on the surface to learn as much about the internal make-up of our satellite as possible. Various objects, like spent third stages of rocket boosters as well as lunar landing modules, were crashed into the moon. Every time we did this, the moon, as NASA scientists put it "rang like a huge gong". Or, as one NASA scientist put it, "like a huge bell", and it has done so time and again, for up to four hours. Furthermore, the vibrations traveled down to a depth of about 22-25 miles and reveals an inner layer of different composition and material exists inside the moon. This material is definitely not rock, for, not only did the vibrations travel great distances around the moon but they did gradually accelerate to a speed of 6 miles per second. This, I believe, is the speed of sound through metal.

NASA scientists have made various models of the moon based on startling evidence like this. One model they have set up is a hollow moon with an outer layer of rock and dust and a metal inner sphere. This is exactly what the two Soviet scientists of the Soviet Academy of Sciences think the moon may be--nothing else but a spaceship!

No one knows the meaning of the strange lights and objects which have been sighted on the moon through the centuries. Today, the moon is still a mystery. As one NASA official put it, "The moon has given us answers we don't have questions for yet!"

If intelligent forms of life are out there, it is just a matter of time, distance and technology before contact is made. Many scientists feel that it is in the realm of the near future.

Not only is VonDaniken's logic faulty in many areas of thought, but so are his facts—which look impressive but do not stand up to close scrutiny.

Where VonDaniken Went Wrong!

BY PAUL HUGLI

The legend of ancient astronauts has probably fascinated man as much as any other. With the flood of books and movies on the subject, millions have taken an interest in these visitors from outer space.

The theory itself is nothing new...having been around since the days of Charles Fort...but it was Erich Von Daniken's Chariots of the Gods that brought this amazing legend to the general public's attention. In doing so, Von Daniken carried a carload of errors and misinformation. This information was erroneous back in the fifties when it was originally presented; and he didn't do the one thing required of any good reporter—to get the facts!

By not checking his facts, Von Daniken has passed on misinformation to his millions of readers; and, indirectly, presented a theory based on many false statements.

To do justice to the mistakes in The Chariots of the Gods would take a whole book, so I will limit myself to a few random samples as I thumb through Von Daniken's first book on the "fact" of ancient astronauts.

Possibly Von Daniken's most outstanding error in logic comes when he talks of all those "advanced" civilizations that have "popped-up" from nowhere...as if overnight. Of course, his argument is that aliens interfered and helped to develop the technology of these primitive cultures. In other words, if a civilization was primitive 2000 years ago and had a somewhat advanced culture only 1500 years ago, then Von Daniken would imply that all of a sudden an advanced civilization popped up from nowhere.

Hasn't he ever heard of social evolution?

After 500 years, a culture is bound to take advantage of advances by pure technological evolution. So that a more advanced civilization would be expected, and one would, indeed, be surprised if we did not find one. To help you understand what I mean, suppose that a man in the far-off future was to dig up ruins from our present day society and ones from only two hundred years ago. The range of technological advance would be amazing, but could this future man say, "Wow...look! In less than two hundred years this civilization had suddenly advanced... 'popped up' out of nowhere. It must have been visitors from outer space." Hard to believe? Yes, but this is what Von Daniken is saying when he talks about advanced civilizations popping up out of nowhere.

Not only is his logic faulty on civilizations popping up, but so are his facts, which look impressive but do not add to the validity of his theory. For example, Von Daniken states that we (i.e., the scientific community) do not know where the ancient culture of Sumeria came from. He maintains that it came from the aliens because it was so advanced over the Semite barbarians. But we do know the origin of the Sumerians and it is well documented by a series of cultures, which evolved between 9000 and 3000 B.C. Yet, Von Daniken claims it materialized out of nowhere.

In the Chariots of the Gods, Von Daniken lists a group of amazing archeological objects that he believes can only have been created by a more advanced civilization than was present at that time in man's cultural evolution. A few are listed below:

In Helwan there was found an ancient piece of cloth...with a fine fabric that only a special factory in modern day time could have produced. Or so Von Daniken leads us to believe. What he overlooked was the simple fact that the Anatolians were good weavers 2000 years before the date of this "amazing" piece of cloth...and in 2000 years, no doubt, they would have developed the craft, one of the oldest, to a fine art.

Cut crystal lenses were found among the ruins of ancient sites. So fine, that today we produce such lenses from an electrochemical process using cesium oxide. This doesn't mean that our forefathers used the same method; and, by the way, electrochemical processes occur quite readily in nature. By experimenting, a bright individual could have discovered how to use these natural occurring processes to his advantage. No alien interference need be implied.

The Baghdad Museum has a clay container on display. Next to it lays two metal rods. Von Daniken says that this is an ancient dry cell battery...if one adds acid (an electrolyte). Just because a battery can be created by adding an electrolyte doesn't mean that the ancients did this; and it, the container, could have been for an entirely different purpose.

Von Daniken has the habit of calling any ancient drawing (e.g. cave paintings) with a man in costume as being the primitive's interpretation of their gods...the ancient astronauts. His argument becomes stronger if the person in the drawing is wearing some type of headgear, especially with objects projecting from it. Of course, to Von Daniken, the headgear is a helmet and those projecting objects could only be antennae. Hasn't he ever heard of war and hunting costumes worn by primitive tribes? Costumes that consist of hoods with horns? Horns or antennae, which are they?

The Bible is a major source of UFO sightings...as recorded in UFOs in the Bible by Morris K.

Please turn page

Jessup (late fifties) and Downings Flying Saucers in the Bible (late sixties)...so says Von Daniken. I am not going to argue with Von Daniken on this subject, because the Bible is a matter of interpretation as it is. But I would like to object to one of his major theories...that he formulates from the Biblical reference in Genesis 6:4...“when the sons of God came in unto the daughters of men, and they bore children.”

Von Daniken believes that the “sons of God” were the alien astronauts that came to our planet and mated with sub-human primitives...thus creating the superior human that we have today...a hybrid of man and space being. This is hard to accept, from a pure biological standpoint. Given that the aliens exist, that they are humanoid, that they visited ancient Earth...I find it difficult, as a zoologist, to believe that their genetic make-up would be compatible with ours...though it might be quite similar. I might accept that genetic engineering took place...but Von Daniken does not mention this. Why? Not sensational enough?

Von Daniken says that the wicked cities of Sodom and Gomorrah were destroyed by a nuclear blast. He asks, “What else could have caused such an explosion?” He may have arrived at a different answer if he had studied a few facts dealing with the location of the two cities. They sat, probably, over a large amount of subterranean oil, and were situated on the Great Rift (the biggest earthquake fault in the world). Conclusion...a giant oil explosion created by an earthquake. As a side point, many earthquakes spit up many minerals...including salt!

The Island of Elephantine was named, according to Von Daniken, after the fact that the island looks like an elephant...which it does. But how did the native know this? There is no hill to view the island's shape. This is interesting...if it was true. Actually, the origin of the island's name comes from the Greek word for “ivory” (from the Egyptian “yeb”)...which has nothing to do with the shape of the island. Good try, Erich.

On Easter Island we find hundreds of stone heads looking out over the waters...as if waiting. Waiting for the gods? Anyhow, Von Daniken's lack of research really shows up here. He states that these 25 to 30 ton statues were made from steel-hard volcanic rock and erected by someone other than the island's 2000 population. After all, he says, they had no wood to make rollers or tools to cut this steel-hard rock. Other than the fact that the rocks are quite soft, he overlooked a way to find out how the native 5000 (not 2000) constructed these statues...just ask them. This is exactly what Thor Heyerdahl did...he asked them. A group of twelve men erected a fallen head in just eighteen days...using only ropes, stones and poles. No wood rollers were needed...nor, any gods.

At times Von Daniken seemed to mix legends...to fit his ideas? For example, he records in Chariots of the Gods, “Among Mayans...the god Kukulkan presumably corresponds to the figure of (their) later god Quetzalcoatl.” But what he failed to realize was that not only was Quetzalcoatl not a Mayan god, but that he pre-dated (not post-dated, as Erich says) the Mayan god Kukulkan as a Toltec god.

As for those marks on the plains of Nazca (and elsewhere), Von Daniken wants us to believe that they are landing strips and markers to help the alien crafts. First, he tells us that these beings can cross vast expansions of space, but then tells us they need the help of a landing strip...like modern planes. Von Daniken gives and then takes away.

Probably the most interesting of all, in relation to this ancient astronaut theory, is the pyramids. Those wonderful feats of ancient engineering that, according to Von Daniken, could only have been created by superior beings. Why does he believe this? A few of his reasons follow:

Von Daniken states that it would take 10,000 men 664 years to transport the 2,600,000 blocks

(each, he says, averages 12 tons) to build the 490 foot (actually 481.4 feet) Pyramid of Cheops. He says that they couldn't feed that many men. There were no ropes, no wood rollers or instruments to carve and transport the huge stones and fit them together within a thousandth of an inch. This might be true if the facts were. What he forgot to do was to look at the hieroglyphics (picture-writing) on the walls and tombs... for he would find his answers. For they record how the pyramids were built.

First, a few of Von Daniken's facts were wrong. The average weight of the 2,300,000 stones (not 2,600,000 . . . but what's 300,000 stones here or there?) is 2½ tons, not 12 tons. These facts alone would reduce his estimated time of completion from 664 years to about 525 years...that is, if we accept his method of calculation. Which I do not.

He said that there was not enough food to feed 10,000 hungry workers. This is foolish...the Egyptians had plenty of food, with crops controlled by irrigation and flooding.

Ancient copper saws and chisels have been found that date back to the First Dynasty... hundreds of years before the great pyramids.

Trees were imported from nine different sites to be used as rollers; and ropes (many on display at the Cairo Museum)

Although he has opened the door to new insights on man and his universe, VonDaniken has also, in his haste, passed on much misleading information to his millions of readers and has based his theories on many false assumptions.

were used...contrary to Von Daniken. The ropes were made of fibre or flax and are depicted on tomb walls of the Fifth Dynasty, and were in use hundreds of years before the building of the great pyramids.

Actually, it has been estimated that the average pyramid was constructed in 30 years, using copper tools, ropes, pulleys, and rollers. Sorry...no gods were needed.

Von Daniken seems to think that the creation of mummies were man's attempt to live a later life (as are men now being frozen). He asks where this concept came from...who put it in the ancient's head? The gods...Von Daniken says. And, to him, the gods means the ancient astronauts. Were they preparing for a rebirth?

Yes, a rebirth, but not an earthly one. They believed in a spiritual rebirth—a rebirth of the soul. This was evident by the simple fact that when people were mummified, their brains and internal organs were removed. This made earthly reinstatement impossible—or very unpleasant, to say the least.

Erich Von Daniken is not the only propagator of misinformation on the ancient astronaut theory, but he is the most famous. I believe that Mr. Von Daniken should rewrite his book and include a corrected text, to help clear up the misinformation. □

GHOSTS, UFOS, FORTEAN: IS THERE A CONNECTION?

Two decades of psychic research have convinced me that many classic ghost stories have nothing to do with the spirit world. They are reports, too often filed and forgotten, of human contact with extraterrestrials technologies.

The two main "ghostly" encounters that follow, were selected from voluminous readings into the field of Fortean phenomena, seem far more closely related to the ufo enigma than to spectral visitations of astral spirits.

UFO researchers have completely ignored the fascinating eye-witness testimony of Edmund Lenthalswifte, keeper of the crown jewels of England for the period 1814-1852. One Saturday evening in October, 1817, the 40 year old Swifte sat at a table in his living quarters within the Jewel House of the Tower of London. Swifte's wife, his sister-in-law, and his six-year-old son sat at the table with him. The three doors into the sitting room were locked and bolted. The windows were closed and fastened. The room was completely dark except for the feeble flickering of two wax candles.

"Good God!" Mrs. Swifte shouted, "What is that?" At the exact moment his wife screamed, Mr. Swifte spied a glass tube floating high above the table. The cylindrical container was three or four inches thick, and about a foot long. The device was filled with two fluids, one a bright white, the other an azure blue.

While Swifte and his wife watched the tube, the two liquids swirled about, blended into a blue-white mixture, and then separated. This process was repeated several times over a period of about two minutes. The tube then lowered itself toward the table. It moved past the members of the family, as if inspecting them.

When the thing reached Mrs. Swifte, it hovered above and behind her right shoulder. "Oh, Christ," she shrieked, "It has seized me!"

Mr. Swifte, believing his wife in danger, picked up a chair and swung the piece of furniture at the cylinder. The chair went through the tube, Swifte recorded later in the scholarly Notes and Queries magazine, and rebounded off the wall of the room. The glass instrument vanished a few seconds later.

Only Swifte and his wife saw the tube. Mrs. Swifte's sister and her son saw nothing. Ghost-hunter Elliott O'Donnell insisted in his Ghosts of London, that this was because Swifte and his wife were psychic, while the others were not.

What was seen, O'Donnell inferred, was a "ghostly" apparition. This view is the generally held one, and the episode has entered the ranks of the camp fire ghost tale. The Swiftes' experi-

Could the strange looking tube have been a radio sonde, or probe from some unknown world?

Looked at through the eyes of modern technology, many reports of so-called ghost images could be in reality, extra-terrestrial visitors.

Bryce Bond Interviews:

BOND: "Do you think life does exist in our solar system . . . some sort of life?"

SANDERSON: "I think it would be quite likely that a form of life - not our kind of life - but what we call life exists out there."

BOND: "In other words, humanoids?"

SANDERSON: "No, not humanoids. But, we might have funguses and vegetable-type life running on a hydro-carbon base such as all life on this planet runs on Mars, for instance, because Mars is not that different and now we know it does have some atmosphere. Now the larger planets I don't know, but I would suppose you would have a form of life running about on top of Fresnomonia or something. In the absence of oxygen, because we think of life . . .

BOND: "As it is today, as we are right now . . .

SANDERSON: "Yes, and planets and animals on the surface all based on hydro-carbon. But, there could be other forms of life, because you don't even have to have a body to have life."

After all, the material that we are made of is nothing else but energy when you come down to it. It's all made of molecules; the molecules are made of atoms; the atoms are simply made of quanter and the quanter are nothing else than energy. So, you could have things build up without a corporeal body. In our solar system it's very likely, mathematically and statistically, that in our galaxy there are probably a hundred million stars, at the minimum, that have planets going around them at the same distance that we go around our sun, and, those stars are just about the same as our sun. Therefore, it's very likely that there's life just the same as it is on this planet going around our sun, going around the same type planet, the same distance of these other suns in our galaxy."

BOND: "Do you believe in UFO's?"

SANDERSON: "UFO's are enormously complicated. It's like you can run around and say: 'Do you really think that the Loch Ness monster exists?' It's just as if there was one poor wretched animal that had no parents and nothing else. You can't just have the or one thing. You asked me: 'Do you believe in UFOs with an 's' on the end, but most people say, 'Oh, I saw the flying saucer' practically as if there was only one kind. Now, there are a number of different types of things seen in our sky which we don't know about. Here again it gets even more hairy because we don't know half the natural things which are in our sky. Don't forget it was only a hundred years ago that we admitted that meteorites ever arrived here... science, as a whole, said it was impossible for pieces of iron and stone to fall out of the sky because there were, obviously, no stones in the sky. Now, we have these lumps of ice landing all over the place all the time - great, huge things, up to a couple of tons - so they're obviously natural things. So, we don't know what's going on much. What's natural we might accept. Then we have all these other things which seem to be unnatural to us because we have no idea what they are! And, all of them are classed together - bunched together - as flying saucers or UFOs. But, by golly, some of them may actually be a form of life themselves; some may come from other planets, not in our solar system, I would say, but other universes. Now, the two really come together. If you go to the other side of our galaxy and you have a planet - say it's exactly the same as ours and you've got intelligent people on it - they may have four arms, but, with developed technology. Will you look where we've come in two hundred years, with all our modern equipment and everything? Supposing they were even a thousand years ahead of us, they would've probably stumbled across something which actually we really know nothing about, a thing called teleportation, which means the instant transference of solid matter through other solid matter, just the same as we pick up sound through radio and we pick up two-dimension pictures on TV. This simply means three-dimension projection."

BOND: "May I interrupt one second? Speaking about teleportation, there's some information going around that the United States Navy secretly accomplished the teleportation of a warship from Philadelphia to its home berth in Norfolk by applying Einstein's unified field theory and then it became invisible. How about this? Hogwash or what?"

SANDERSON: Well, yes, I'm afraid to say it, but it is. I know the experimentation at one time on the possibility of bending light in order to create perfect camouflage. If you could bend the light coming at an object - coming to it from outside up to a certain distance around it - you wouldn't be able to see it, you follow me? Now, this great story started from a book by a fellow called Morris Jessup, whom I know very well and a wonderful fellow called Alys Hyanda, called Adam, (he's got a great sense of humor). He was on a naval transport, a commercial ship under naval command during the war in 1943 and it was in a sort of convoy with some naval vessels who were experimenting with what is a form of signalling device, as I understand it, the bending of light and, he mentioned this to Jessup. Jessup was always the mystic although he was trained as an astronomer and he wrote it up in his book.

Then a copy of Jessup's book was sent to the office of Naval Research. They were so fascinated that they sent it to a place in Texas and had it all re-done and then they called Jessup in and said, 'Where did you get this story?' and he said, 'I don't know' and they said, 'Look here, the people who annotated the copy of your book are probably gypsies. Have you ever seen anything with this funny phraseology in the way of writing?' and he said, 'Wait a minute, that sounds just like some letters that I've received from a crazy fellow. I've put them in the crackpot file because I thought they were so crazy.' So, he went home and found the letters and they were from this fellow, Carl Allen whom I know personally for many years. He half did it as a joke. It was half a joke and he admits now he should never have done it because even people like the Office of Naval Research took it seriously. Well, that started it all! Then all the screwballs, crackpots, kooks, pseudo-scientists, saucerians, and UFOlogists all got on to it. I suppose, there must be a dozen books published on this subject. The whole of it was a leg-pull on the part of Carl Allen except for the fact that he was in the naval service, and that they were carrying on some experiments. Now this business about being founded on Einstein's unified field theory. Well, naturally, everything is! The moment you get into photoelectrics, photonics, anything. After all, the only thing that Einstein didn't actually do was to prove that gravity had a way of motion and he thought that if that got itself proved (and I believe that we are just in the process of doing it now) then you could probably unify gravitics (gravity . . . being a way of motion) with electro-magnetics which, of course, is linked on the other hand to ordinary material physics, or mechanics as we call it. That's what is called 'the unified theory.' But, anything you did of such a nature would have to be founded on Einstein's principles of relativity - the bending of light, for instance."

BOND: "What about all the strange disappearances, such as the six patrol bombers leaving Florida?"

SANDERSON: "Well, that's all that business about the Bermuda Triangle. It's not a triangle and Bermuda's not in it. It turns out to be one of ten, maybe twelve . . . (as of an article published in The Scientific American, we did the preliminary work and found that there wasn't just one of these). They aren't triangles. They're lozenge-shaped things. They're all over water. There was another one known to the Air Force for a long time, south of Japan. The funny effects in these places come and go. Then we did some work - a whole bunch of geologists, geo-physicists, oceanographers - and we found that there were about ten of these things concentrated where there are whirlpools or sort of whirligigs, not whirlpools. The moment I say whirlpool everyone's going to think of a maelstrom or The Sargasso Sea. But, if you look at a map of the surface currents of the oceans, you'll see that there are these ten places where cold water comes jetting from the polar regions into the hot regions and starts turning round and round a lot of hot water. Now, when you get a temperature difference between the outside of a whirligig and a thing going around on the inside, some very curious things happen, which you'd never expect! It concentrates into the center and this is really the explanation of hurricanes, too, and how they get going. How they seem to gather energy rather than dissipate it! Now, funny things do happen from time to time. But, like hurricanes, they only occur sometimes. They whirl and they finally die. But, in some of these ten areas, every now and then, they develop very curious features - something goes wrong with electro-magnetics, for instance, compasses don't work; there's a complete radio blackout; something definitely goes wrong with time (particularly in the one south of Japan) and I have, here, all the documentation from both commercial and military flyers. There are planes that have arrived before they have left and there are those that have taken six hours longer to get somewhere. The only way that could be possible was (they were in touch with the ground all the while, mind you) that they would have to be running into a wind of over 250 miles an hour, 250 knots at about 1,000 ft. And, there is no such wind. If there had been, it would have blown Kwajaleen and Okinawa into the sea! All right now, these areas do have these curious anomalies. What happens when these natural physical forces are sort of tampered with due to the whirling motion? There's a whole science of whirligigs etc. We don't know, but it would seem that things here drop out of our universe - our space-time continuum - and it seems to be around these areas that things drop in. I'm back, always back, to what I was saying in the very beginning of our talk, you know. That it's not a question of coming from somewhere else or going somewhere else. It's a question of going out of here and into here, right out of our space-time continuum!"

BOND: "But, what about the disappearance with no trace whatsoever? There's no flotsam or jetsam left behind. And, what about the crews of ships disappearing and the ship is still intact."

SANDERSON: "Ah, wait a minute, now you're coming to another very interesting thing. Of course you wouldn't find any flotsam or jetsam if they drop out. They go right out of our universe so you wouldn't find anything. Let's talk about a boat.

There's a boat going through one of these anomalous areas when things begin to go wrong physically. And we think just because it vanished that everything on it will vanish. But it seems to be much more selective than that, especially if there is intelligence behind what is plucked out.

BOND: "How so?"

SANDERSON: "Because sometimes everything alive on board is gone! Other times the human beings are gone, but the canaries and the dogs and pets are left. So, this is . . .

BOND: "Are you saying this is controlled by intelligence?"

SANDERSON: "Yes, intelligence in another space-time continuum! Some of these things are controlled. I've been into this for Good Lord, thirty years now, and I cannot see anything of a purely, or what we would call a 'physical' nature, such as you teach in physics and chemistry in school and our straight-forward materialistic science, which could possibly explain selective snatches such as that. Some of the cases really are most peculiar of where, as I say, the canaries, a parrot, a cat and a couple of dogs are left and every human being has gone off quite large modern ships. The ship's still intact! Other times the whole dang shooting-match disappears. Looks to me as if there is intelligence behind it. Somebody's collecting seamen or . . . And, other times the pets go, and the people are left. If you go to the New York Bureau of Missing Persons, they say supposing 100,000 persons at an average disappear a year and they get back about 70,000 but there are still about . . . 12,000 which cannot be accounted for at all. You know, husbands taking powders and people committing suicide, you know, all that sort of thing. Police have an incredible record for getting them and yet there is this tremendous mass which are not accounted for (and a lot of them disappear in the presence of other people). This is what is so very odd, the ones that they don't see! You see, if a husband decides suddenly: "I'm going to Nevada, take a powder, change my name, grow a beard" . . . that's one thing. You don't see that person go, really. Whereas it's the one who says: "I'll be back in one second" . . . and vanishes. Now, those are the ones that they never find."

BOND: "Maybe they're the chosen few?"

SANDERSON: "But how the heck do you know who I am, for instance, and how do I know who you are? I mean, you may be from someplace else. You may not know it, but you might still be from someplace else. What about Ted Serios, . . . this fellow takes photographs by pointing a camera . . . Without a lens and without a camera, he still gets photographs and sensitive film about places he has never been to. That's another whole bit."

BOND: "I think that's psychic photography."

SANDERSON: "First of all, I don't think it's any such thing as 'psychic'. It should be called para-psychic, which is like we have been taught to think of as psychic. I don't think there is anything psychic. I am an entire materialist. And, then I would like to go back to what I nearly finished before: about what is the difference about coming here, instantaneously, from the other side of our galaxy in our universe, or dropping out of another universe and coming here instantaneously. This is the point: we are working up to the immediate transmission of solids. See, radio is airborne, but the actual transmission from the transmitter is instantaneous, just the same as our power. People think you manufacture power and then pipe it down from Buffalo and down to New York from Niagara Falls. You don't. You use it at the moment it is being made because it's 100 millionths of a

Scientists are taking another look at the remarkable space map drawn by Betty Hill—a map she claims was on the wall of a spaceship which abducted her and her husband while driving through New Hampshire.

THE ZETA RETICULI CONNECTION

BY PROF. J.M. FERGUSON

The publication in the December 1974, issue of Astronomy magazine of an article by Terence Dickinson called "The Zeta Reticuli Incident," has caused reverberations in the scientific community which are still being felt to this day.

The provocative article concerns a possible visit to earth 15 years ago by extraterrestrials from a binary star system known as Zeta 1 and Zeta 2 Reticuli. This faint pair of stars, some 37 light years (220 trillion miles) distant from our own solar system, could quite possibly be the home base, according to the article, of the intelligent beings who allegedly landed in New Hampshire and abducted Betty and Barney Hill in the late summer of 1961.

The case of Betty and Barney Hill has been widely circulated in the press and other media. The couple claims to have been taken aboard an alien spacecraft and being subjected to physical examinations by four-foot-tall humanoids. They were told upon their release that they would not remember anything that had transpired during their abduction. Their memories of the incident, which took place over a period of two hours, were only brought to light under subsequent hypnosis and psychiatric sessions. While under hypnosis, Betty Hill drew a star map, which she claims to have seen on a wall panel within the spacecraft. She says that the spacecraft commander pointed to two stars on the map and somehow gave her the impression that this was the stellar system from which the aliens had come from.

In 1968, Ohio researcher and astronomer Marjorie Fish became intrigued by the Hill map. In the following year, 1969, an astronomical reference book called the Gliese Catalog of Nearby Stars was published; it listed all the known stars within a radius of 55-light-years of our solar system, their distances, luminosities, and perhaps most importantly, their spectral types. Using the Gliese Catalog, with other sources of data, Ms. Fish painstakingly constructed three-dimensional models of our immediate stellar neighborhood. She employed beads of various color to represent the different spectral classifications of the stars. In this manner, she could immediately determine the locations of those stars most like our sun and hence the ones most likely to harbor life-bearing planets.

The lines on Betty Hill's map were purportedly described to her by the aliens as being trade or expeditionary routes—the aliens would, of course, want to visit only those stars or star systems capable of sustaining life; therefore, they would presumably map out a route consisting only of solar or near-solar type stars close enough to our sun in terms of temperature, luminosity, chemi-

This model which was made by Majorie Fish, shows all the stars located in a vast volume of space which reaches out to about fifty light years in the direction of Zeta Reticuli. The lines connecting solar type stars are remarkably close to the space map drawn by Betty Hill.

This map was drawn by Betty Hill who claims she saw it aboard a spaceship which abducted her and her husband for a short period of time. The hill map has raised some eyebrows since it bears a striking resemblance to one of the models made by Majorie Fish. (see above)

Dr. Diaz noticed the strange man sitting in his waiting room and, for some reason, felt very uneasy about him. He was sitting under a large office plant waiting to be seen by the doctor. Dr. Diaz felt certain that he had not seen the little man before. In fact, the doctor was surprised to see him as the last patient had left and he had secured the door; "when I turned around to go back to my office, there he was—sitting silently in the corner."

Composing himself, the doctor asked the stranger to step into his examining room. He asked the man if anything was bothering him. "No," replied the man, "all I want is for you to examine me."

The doctor then proceeded to examine the man.

What the doctor discovered was something that no mortal on this planet would believe. The man, about five feet tall, was bald and completely devoid of hair except for some strands on his head. His skin was as white, or whiter, than that of an albino and, like Elizabeth Taylor, his eyes were a deep violet. The doctor noted that the strange man did not have hair follicles either.

After examining the man Dr. Diaz asked "Who are you?" The man replied, "I wanted you to examine me so that you would have no doubt that what I am about to tell you is the truth. I am from another sun system and I have a message for earth people." Dr. Diaz felt faint as he slumped into his chair. He was shocked but his mind was racing with the implications of this encounter.

"I find it difficult to believe but after examining you...well, I never believed in UFOs and all that but I guess I was wrong." The being then told the doctor: "Through man's dependence on nuclear energy, this order of mankind is very close to an end. Earthlings should be utilizing electricity which is all around you, and poses no danger to the planet." He continued, "Electrical power could provide all the energy this planet needs, and it is the power that interplanetary spaceships use, such as the one that brought me to your planet. You call it 'static electricity' and it is the basic power in the universe."

He told Dr. Diaz that mankind was abusing their energy sources and especially warned of the danger of nuclear energy. "It could lead to the destruction of not only planet Earth but the entire solar system," he said. He also told Dr. Diaz that beings from his and other planets have been visiting Earth for over 2,000 years. "We have tried to guide you in shaping your future but few have heeded us. But now these warnings have more meaning because the end of your world is near. There are many of my people living on your planet trying to stop your scientists from destroying the human race and the rest of the solar system. Many contacts have been made with world leaders concerning the unstable condition of this planet's future but they are withholding this information from the public."

The stranger also told Dr. Diaz that there are 12 planets in our solar system, not nine as we believe. The Stranger also revealed that electricity is composed of "over 15 sub-atomic particles, while your scientists know of only three." As the visitor left he told Dr. Diaz, "I will be back again, please believe me."

Dr. Diaz told no one of his encounter for fear of being ridiculed. Worse yet, he was afraid people would lose faith in him as a doctor and take him for some sort of weirdo. But, eventually, he told his family and some close friends. It was through one such close friend, a woman from Guadalajara, Mexico who is associated with a California UFO group, that the doctor discovered that there have been many reports similar to his.

Dr. Leopoldo Diaz is a graduate of the University of Guadalajara Medical School and has been in private practice for over 23 years. He is a respected pediatrician and the executive director of one of Mexico's largest hospitals. "I was shocked to learn that many others have been contacted and given exactly the same message."

Michael Packer, a California radio newsman, tracked down the doctor after reading an article of his strange encounter. The newspaper article revealed that a team from the United Nations was investigating the doctor's report. Mr. Parker arranged for a TV interview in which additional information on the extraterrestrial's visit was aired.

This is the first investigation launched by the United Nations into the possibility of life in the universe. Bertrand Chatel, in charge of the Technology Applications Section at the United Nations, stated that he has met Dr. Diaz several times in secret sessions in New York City. "We still need more investigations. It is the only UFO contact case we are probing. It is definitely unusual. It cannot be considered a major scientific event because we must have additional scientific evidence."

There are many investigators

THE STRANGER

Sketch by Warren Martin shows the craft that he and 4 friends reportedly saw. There were three diamond-shaped lights at the bottom of the UFO.

This sketch of a similar UFO was made by Muhammed Ali back in 1972. His sighting was reported several years ago in Beyond Reality magazine.

“WE’RE SEEING UFOs”

What's it like to see a UFO up close? Would you run away? Would you be willing to tell anyone of your experience? Most of us go about our daily business without giving it any thought—not until they read about such UFO encounters as occurred to Warren Martin and four of his friends.

Martin had no interest in UFOs, nor did he ever expect to see one. Martin and his friends were driving through the suburbs of Canton, Massachusetts, when it all started.

It was raining for the past few hours, and somehow the rear tires of their car had gotten stuck in the mud only a few feet away from the railroad tracks which passed through this area. Warren and his friends worked hard to release the tires from the mud for fear that a passing train would demolish the car. They complained loudly as they worked to free the car from the situation it was in.

It was about 9 pm on this cold and wet night, when a sound from above caught their attention. "I thought it was a plane at first," said Martin. "Then I noticed that the colors of the lights were wrong because I know that an airplane couldn't stand up to the way the strange object moved. The stress on the wings would probably have snapped them off."

One of the men who would not give his name for fear of being ridiculed remarked: Wow! we're seeing flying saucers." Martin further stated; "We were really kind of paranoid about it." Martin who is 20-years-of-age said that the group was amazed as well as frightened as the UFO swooped to within two or three hundred yards from where their car was stuck. Martin recalled one of his friends shouted: "Turn it off, turn off the dome light." It seems that the dome light inside their car was on, and they were afraid it might attract the attention of the UFO.

Martin was the only one of the five boys who consented to be interviewed or identified. In describing the UFO, he said "it was shaped kind of like a hat, with three diamond shaped lights at the bottom which flashed occasionally in sequence." The five agreed that the UFO flashed purple, orange, red, and blue lights. They also agreed that it was impossible for a plane to go through these types of maneuvers which included right angle turns at tremendous speeds. Martin also said the strange object performed aerial games, some dipping and some swerving.

The boys declared that the object was enough to scare the hell out of anyone, and they wanted to leave, but couldn't cause the car was still stuck in the mud. One of the boys shouted: "I'm getting out of here," but the rest managed to control his fears and calmed him down. The weather was bad, so they decided to just sit in the car and watch this strange object in the night sky.

"We watched for about ten minutes, and then it suddenly was gone. As soon as it was gone, we heard a train approaching, and lucky for us it was on the second set of tracks; otherwise the car would have been struck. But as the train passed and sped away in the distance, we looked up and saw that the UFO was back again!"

It hovered there for about 10 minutes before it left in a burst of speed. After freeing the car, the group left to report what they had seen to the local police. Martin was told to contact the Air Force, who explained to him that the Air Force was no longer chasing UFOs since closing "Project Blue Book," S.G. Payne, Public Affairs Officer for the FAA (Federal Aviation Administration). On contacting the FAA, they were told by Mr.

The man said the voices "came from inside my head." He told how they urged him to make himself ready for an interplanetary "visit" from aliens of another world.

"THE UNEARTHLY VOICES IN MY EARS"

BY RAMONA CORTEZ

On June 14th, 1978, a 38-year old Colorado businessman staggered into a Denver police station and very nervously announced that he must be locked up. "Not in prison," he tearfully told the desk sergeant, "for I have committed no crime—but in a mental institution," he said, his voice quivering, "I'm going insane."

Unsteady on his feet, the man almost fell but was caught in time by detectives and ushered into a chair in a private room. He was given a mild sedative by a police physician.

Somewhat relaxed now, the man, whose identity is being withheld for obvious reasons, announced that since mid-Spring, he has been hearing voices, "as plain as day." He said these voices are coming from those who identify themselves as inhabitants of an extraterrestrial space craft orbiting just outside of Earth's atmosphere.

The voices, he said, spoke at first in a whisper, barely audible, and then, as time went on, became louder. "I'd be in a crowd of people, and they'd be there, I'd be alone, and they'd still be there. No one can hear them but myself."

He said the voices, coming from inside his head, were urging him to make himself ready for an interplanetary takeover by aliens from another world.

Those who spoke to him, he brought out, had been "clouding" his mind, both day and night, crowding out his own thoughts and that they would permit him no peace, and no sleep, plaguing him constantly, until he surely thought he was on the verge of a mental breakdown.

Several months later, just a week after Labor Day, 1978, a middle-aged insurance man from Dallas, Texas, committed suicide by leaping through his ninth story apartment window. He left a suicide note on the kitchen table which said, "the voices in my head wouldn't leave me in peace, they want to invade us—they've already invaded my mind..."

In Jackson Mississippi, officers in a cruising squad car, picked up a clean-shaven, well dressed man of 28, wandering the streets at 5 a.m. The man had been in an hypnotic stupor. When questioned, he couldn't even remember his name. Prolonged psychiatric treatment and continuous counseling revealed that the young man, an industrial engineer, had been "plagued by voices" inside his head," emanating "from extraterrestrials who are in the process of invading the planet earth."

Similar incidents have been occurring with alarming frequency from Main to California, and each case follows the same pattern; mental voices that wouldn't cease.

Most of the witnesses to these bizarre "mental hauntings" have also claimed to have seen a UFO. The businessman in Colorado revealed that two months before, while walking his dog after dinner, he saw a disc-shaped object hovering between two buildings.

second . . . it travels at the speed of light. Exactly the same with the actual broadcast, what is then reconverted back into sound waves. Television is instantaneous. Instantaneous transference of this ashtray, for instance, from here through these walls to my apartment which is about six blocks down the road . . . THAT is teleportation. But, if you can do that within our universe you can do it instantly from any distance in our universe. And, don't forget, our universe is circular. I mean - to over-simplify - Einstein said if you can go on to infinity in one direction you will eventually hit the back of your head. Because, actually, space is curved . . . our space. There are a lot of other curved spaces mixed up in it. You can go from one side of one universe to the other side of the universe instantaneously because you are really there already! It's where you started from! You can also come from another universe and pop in out here or in there anytime you want once you've got teleportation, or instantaneous projection. I call it ITF - instantaneous transference. This is what we are working up to and this is what scientists - thinking scientists - and all the governments have come to the conclusion is the method by which UFO's appear and disappear and move about and make angular turns and so on.

BOND: "From another dimension, in other words."

SANDERSON: "No, no, not another dimension. This is where everybody makes a mistake. There can only be three dimensions. The mathematical proof of that appeared some time ago in Germany and then, also, in England and it has now come out in a leading scientific journal here. You can't have a fourth dimension. The whole thing would collapse. You can't have any space which is unidimensional, or linear or two-dimensional. It's got to have three dimensions otherwise there will not be a universe. It won't exist in space. Now, there is no fourth dimension, but another set of three dimension or another set and another set and another set, an infinite number of three dimensions, not a fourth dimension."

BOND: "Let's get down to the nitty-gritty. What are the UFOs that people are seeing?"

SANDERSON: "All kinds of things that are coming through from another universe. But, if those which are controlled by intelligence you will see what they want you to see and what you expect to see. But, you certainly won't see something that you couldn't imagine and they wouldn't show you anything that they didn't want to show you. They will only show you what they want to show you. In other words, we are all controlled."

BOND: "What about the reports of the contacts of the so-called 'humanoids' walking the earth and people taking rides in UFO's and people being taken aboard them, like Betty and Barney Hill from Exeter, New Hampshire?"

SANDERSON: "All the same—superior intelligence is coming here and maybe they are collecting us or maybe they are studying us to see how we are getting on. Or maybe they are playing games!"

BOND: "But then you do admit there are some forms of unidentified aerial objects."

SANDERSON: "Of course there are! I'm telling you!"

BOND: "What about space animals?"

SANDERSON: "'Ditto.' I mean, after all, they could create a space animal just as much as they could a space machine."

BOND: "Living on the Van Allen belt, or something like that, I suppose?"

SANDERSON: "NO, NO, that would be within OUR universe. They come from Ultra - from another universe. But, we MAY have space animals. We've lots of jelly running around living on space energy. I have always thought that's possible. That's another probability. But you can't say (to talk about UFO's) as if they were flower pots, or houses. It's not so. Look at the number of different things there are in the North Atlantic Ocean, for instance. I believe there are 140,000 species of foreign mini-flora alone and 48,000 species of fish, and God knows you can go on forever."

BOND: "What about this theory of a hole in the earth? You know where the interrestrial beings . . ."

SANDERSON: "The Hollow Earth!" Personally, I really do think that's a lot of rubbish. We do know too much about our little planet, now, to believe that there is a hole somewhere. Admiral Byrd would never have got out if there was. He's supposed to have gone down, or some rubbish."

BOND: "But, aren't there holes that penetrate the Van Allen Belt themselves from the poles themselves, the South Pole and North Pole?"

SANDERSON: "Oh yes, through our atmosphere that's supposed to be true, but not through solids or through water or ice. That's pure mechanics. I mean, if you have a hole . . . As a matter of fact there's one very interesting thing about this report which started all this stuff about the hole in the earth. It was made by Admiral Byrd, and it was a matter of pure semantics. What he stated in his report was that when he was flying over the Antarctic both times he said, 'we've flown beyond the pole.' . . . not over the pole. But, he said "beyond" the pole. It was simply his way of saying that we came from one side . . . you see when we get to the poles there is no geography because it all comes to a point. So, supposing he came from the North America side and went to the Atlantic side, you and I would much more likely say we flew 'over' the pole, but in his dispatches he said, 'I flew beyond the pole.' And then they reported they began to see vegetation and so on. Well, of course they would because they were in Siberia! People turned that around and said that they'd flown off the earth and hit a sort of reverse earth somewhere else."

BOND: "What about Atlantis reappearing?"

SANDERSON: "Now, Atlantis. There never was such a thing. There probably were a great number of large islands in the Central Atlantic which were above the surface at the middle late Pleistocene period. That's just before our modern period. More especially, as the sea levels were certainly different and the continental levels were up and down. That there was a great continent out there which had cities on it and civilization started on it and all that, I see no evidence of that, whatsoever. But, that there were large islands which were inhabited by peoples of a pretty advanced state of culture (in some volumes too, about the Stone Age, the late Paleolithic Age) the people who did that beautiful art in Spain, they probably did come out of the sea in the West from these islands which sank. The actual story of Atlantis, itself, is pretty well proved now that it was that volcanic island in the Aegean which was the sort of mode picture before it blew up and caused the end of the Minoan civilization in Crete. That's all now pretty well established by dating the radioactive carbon etc. But, that's where the civilization was and it got transferred in the old Greek stories . . . (They were stories, too. They weren't reports) . . . to something outside the pillars of Athens and Gibraltar. Now, this could happen is proved by the greatest expert on Atlantis, a man called Louis Spence, a Scotchman who spent all his life and he was serious-minded. He didn't go in for the idea of a great continent with pillars made of solid gold. He was trying to find evidence from exploration of the ocean bottom. He was particularly interested in what had been found on the bottom of the ocean, in the Atlantic Ocean; the early German explorers The Dolphin - his ship - was given the name 'Dolphin' by Reich and he found evidence that considerable areas in what we call the Central Atlantic were definitely above the sea not too long ago, just about 9,000 years ago. They got land snails which can't live in the sea... You can tell fresh-water snails from these . . . and they got a certain kind of lava flow which can only form in air. If the volcano is under water that stuff couldn't form because the chemical constitution would be wrong. All right. He then got a report from a friend in America . . . (this is, to me, one of the most fascinating stores that I've ever known) which was a newspaper clipping saying that the main cable between the Island of Santa Domingo and the Cape of Good Hope (which is now the Republic of South Africa) had broken and that the cable ship had gone out and found that the sea bottom had risen a mile and a quarter straight up, thereby stretching the cable and broke it. That came out in Spence's last book and it was final proof that if land could come up a mile and a quarter, straight up in an ocean bottom overnight, land could go down. Well, of course, every scientist pounced on him because, of course 'the man's a crackpot anyhow', but they don't mind straight crackpots; you know orthodox scientists. What they DO mind are people who pin on facts and stick by them. in scientific circles. But, Louis Spence had literally, really, taken stuff right out of their mouths, do you see? All right. They went for him and said, 'How ridiculous! The sea bottom rises a mile and a quarter? (and this is one of the main cables?) When did it happen? Where? What's the ship?' Spence wrote to his friend, who was a professor, as a matter of fact, in one of our universities in the United States, asking "where did you get that clipping?" His friend replied, "I can't remember where and what newspaper I got it from." I heard about this and started digging. I found the original and I traced it to a magazine called ZODIAC, which is the official publication of the British Wireless and Telegraphic Organization. It is government . . . it is their official document. I got the name of the ship. She was named The Britannia . . . a cable-laying vessel. It did come up a mile and a quarter overnight. I got all the documentation and everything, and sent them to Spence because I knew that this was the one thing that had really destroyed his whole life's work. I got a letter back, about three weeks later from his wife saying, "I'm sorry, my husband passed away two days before your letter arrived." But it does prove what we found out that there could have been large land masses in what is now the Atlantic Ocean up until quite recently. So, therefore, Atlantis as a great continent with a civilization equivalent to ours 9,000 yrs. ago? There is no evidence or proof of that! It is rubbish! That there are large islands inhabited by advanced Stone Age people I think is extremely likely. I think one of these days they are going to dredge up some stone implements and things."

BOND: "Haven't they found some things off . . . ancient Roman columns, I think, off the coast of Bermuda or Bimini? I think some steps that go down, very deep curved steps with some sort of hieroglyphics on the side?"

SANDERSON: "Much worse than that! You've got it, almost. The steps are enormous things. They are about 100 ft. high, I think, and 100 ft. wide, off the coast of Puerto Rico. It is absolutely astonishing! I have seen some of the underwater sonar tracings. Just like a set of perfectly man-made steps except that they are for 1,000 ft. giants. You know what I mean? That's odd! Now these things found off Bimini and round about the Bahamas, there's quite a lot of them, you know and they are, no doubt, buildings. When the first ones were photographed and disclosed, of course, some scientists know where the others are, but they don't want to give the location, otherwise you would have 10,000 idiot skin-divers down there tearing them apart or something. When they did disclose the first lot everybody said they were turtle pens built in shallow water, you know, by the Indians to keep the turtles—(or some absolute nonsense). But, they are there and they are definitely buildings. And the whole of that area has sunk within memory of man almost. Well, in the memory of white man here. Now, if you fly off the coast of the Island (that would be the east coast of the Peninsula of Yucatan which I have done God knows how often I've flown over that place) the water is crystal clear and you can see causeways and whole towns laid out in about thirty to a hundred feet of water. The water is so clear you can see it! And some of those things are some ten to fifteen miles out to sea. So, the whole of that coast has sunk since the Manoans were building. But, those pillars—that's the worst of all! They are 4,000 ft. down off the west coast of South America, quite different. Chile, North Chile, Peru

...they got photographs! They put a TV camera down at the bottom (actually they were looking for giant squid - you know, those giant octopus things) and they got these photographs and they are these buildings and columns and some of the columns appear to have hieroglyphics on them. It is too blurred on the shots you get off the TV. But, they definitely have capitals on the top, you know, like on Roman pillars. And there is no question about them being man-made, or at least some intelligent creatures (and artistic) worked on it. Now, what the dickens are they doing 4,000 ft. down off the coast of South America? behind the Andes now. So, here you they're right opposite where they have been spotted is Lake Titicaca which is the highest lake in the world and at one end of it is Tiahuanaco, an ancient city with enormous stone carvings. Well, I have been there and all the pillars have obviously been under water at some time because they have holes drilled into them by certain kinds of shellfish called Pholatemira, which live on the west coast of South America. Now, this is two miles high and it is a fresh water lake. Now this thing must have been on the sea coast at one time so that the water could only come up about six feet. The bottom of the pillars are all drilled with these holes by these pholatemira. You can even see some shells in there. Now the whole thing has gone up two miles high and it is behind the Andes now. S, here you get pillars 4,000 ft. down on one side and two miles up you have got other pillars which were definitely in salt water. Now, explain that? That is more weird to me than any kind of UFO."

BOND: "I am sure that you will explain it eventually."

SANDERSON: "Yes, definitely, the crust will shift. Now the geologists get into it. I don't even know if you have heard of Plateletomics that they are all talking about? In the New York Times? Now they do admit that the continents do drift around and have been doing it. And, that the sea bottoms are light-weight plates and they seem to be moving around. When one of the oceanic plates comes up against a continental mass something's got to give! An irresistible force hitting against an immovable object and the edge of the land crumbles . . . hence, mountain building. And, of course, the whole west coast of South America (you'd better get a look at the map and you'll see) has crumbled literally. The Andes are sticking up and that's why they are getting these terrible earthquakes in Peru. They are shifting all the time you see. And, after all, if a piece of sea bottom can rise straight up a mile and a quarter overnight, then it is really not difficult to see why pillars shouldn't go down 4,000 ft. or go up two miles."

BOND: "Let's go a bit further. Do you think there are any intelligent beings or other human form living at the bottom of the sea?"

SANDERSON: "I really don't know. I think the majority of what we call UFOs actually come from there. I think that is where their bases are."

BOND: "Do you think they are of this planet or some other planet or from this time or universe?"

SANDERSON: "All three, I think."

BOND: "Speaking about ours, of our planet, which I am primarily interested in now."

SANDERSON: "I think we were evolved here. I will send you a free copy of my book, INVISIBLE RESIDENTS, all about this bottom of the sea. We have some pretty good evidence."

BOND: "By looking at the map, the National Geographic came out with about the sea bottom - it was fascinating - because it is amazing!"

SANDERSON: "It is absolutely fantastic! I'll put this in a nutshell for you. Don't forget, I am a biologist, so if I don't simplify sufficiently call me up, will you? Life, as we now know it, you and I, everybody and all the dogs and cats and everything else we know, was evolved on this earth, including all plants and vegetables that live in air, like we do, live on land. In other words, all originally came out of the sea. Now they were pretty advanced animals. They had evolved half way up at least, before they ever came out of the sea. Therefore any animals that didn't come out of the sea have gone on evolving in the sea and they had twice as long to get where we have got because we had to come out and we had to make all kinds of arrangements to live in a gas. We were evolved, originally, to live in a liquid. You follow? So, it put us back. Whereas, those who never had to do that have had another 250,000,000 years minimum (if not 500,000,000) to go on evolving. And, look how quickly we have come out in the air. That's why I think civilization in water has gotten so far beyond us."

BOND: "Is it expanding, to your knowledge?"

SANDERSON: "What do you mean, the? . . .

BOND: "The race itself, whatever they may be?"

SANDERSON: "Well, I would imagine that 100,000,000 years ago they got to the point where they could dispense with their bodies. This is what we are almost getting to now. You see, this is where your parapsychological stuff comes in, you see!"

BOND: "An outer intelligence, in other words?"

SANDERSON: "Yes, this is the further evolution of the corporeal body. You see, the mind is beginning to take over. There is no question about it! Mental power does not run on the electro-magnetic band. It's got a separate band just as gravity is on another band. And, although you cannot affect the mental band . . . you can't blank it off, the mental band with electro-magnetics. Yet, the mental band can affect electromagnetics. So, it seems to come out of corporeal or material evolution. And when you get to a certain point you can do everything by thinking about it. You don't have to put nuts and bolts together!"

BOND: "Do the governments of the world or the earth know about this? These life forms under the sea?"

SANDERSON: "Well, I can't speak for the governments so I don't know, but I have a very shrewd suspicion that they have known about this all along."

BOND: "And, they are keeping it hush-hush."

SANDERSON: "They have to, really, I mean. Because I have official Naval reports which state that thirteen ships on submarine maneuvers latched on by their radar to an underwater device traveling at 250 Knots down to 20,000 ft. They had a latch on thirteen ships for four days. Now that's an official Navy document. As a matter of fact, the bare bones of it have been published in several rather cheap magazines over the years. People read it and say, "Well, come onnnnn!"

This is the corollary which I discovered, being a Navy man, that the Air Force has thrown this whole business and Project Blue Book which consists of four people, and they were never intended to chase moonbeams. They're not scientists. But the Navy went quietly along without making any fuss about it. They have been doing it all along and so have all the navies in the world, particularly the Brazilians. And, they seem to be, well they know there is something going on down there. What the dickens it is they're not, of course going to come out and push for it because the public really would go balmy if they thought there was a superior civilization indigenous to this earth." □

Hildy does not remember any of these "conversations" after they have taken place. Her dreams, they assured the Brauers, are normal childrens' dreams and no nightmares are involved whatsoever.

"She does remember the earlier breaking up of furniture and the tossing of kitchen materials about and the breaking and shattering of mirrors and the family bric-a-brac. However, she has no explanation of how these things occurred or has an interest in it, but seems more concerned with her schoolwork and her friends."

Unfortunately, friends for Hildy Brauer of late are quite few and far between. Since the incidents began, the Brauers have become objects of ridicule throughout their little town of Nienburg. They are avoided on the streets and former friends, even long-time associates, have shut their doors to the family.

This writer recently vacationed in Germany, and having heard of Nienburg and its bizarre goings-on, visited there and talked with the harried Brauers.

"It's simply a shame that people have to be so damned superstitious, thick-headed and one-sided," Harold Brauer tearfully told this reporter. "I'm sure there's a logical explanation to all of this and one day we'll find out what that explanation is." He shrugged helplessly and pleadingly intoned, "But until we do...."

Having met little Hildy, I am impressed with the fact that she is quite a normal child who cries and laughs, with a normal child's hopes and fears, dreams and ambitions of growing up to be accepted by society.

I was invited to spend my last night in Germany at the Brauer home before journeying back to the States. I say here and now that I have witnessed phenomena in that house which I am sure I will never forget.

After having dined with the overly-friendly Brauers, and after eagerly listening to a book report prepared by Hildy for her class at school the next day, we watched TV for a while then I was taken to a guest-room on an upper floor where I was to spend the night. The next day Harold Brauer would drive me to the airport rather than subject me to the rigors of public transportation. It was 11:30 PM when I climbed into the very comfortable and inviting bed and closed my eyes.

And sleep was welcome, since I knew the flight home would be an exhaustive one (I'm not much for flying. Just thinking about it tires me out).

Around 2 AM I was awakened from a sound sleep by voices which seemed to be coming from the hallway. For a moment I thought the family had gathered outside my room for some unfathomable reason.

I climbed from the bed, put on my robe and just sat there listening. I was about to light a cigarette, but quickly extinguished the match when I heard a man's soft voice calling Hildy's name quite distinctly.

I walked to the door and placed my ears against the wood paneling. Hildy's name was repeated two or three times. I opened the door a crack and listened hard. Were these the voices I had been told about? I am certain they were. They spoke of ancient travelers to this planet and how these star rovers had come to the planet earth to aid mankind in his quest for knowledge; They spoke of time differentials, liquid displacements, sophisticated aircraft parts and of a lengthy journey from their planet to ours, coming with peace and love, armed with knowledge rather than weapons, with formulas for building up rather than tearing down. The voices gave mathematical equations for the building of temples and pyramids. They told how giant buildings will one day dot the face of the earth and how human beings will travel from one star to another and from planet to planet using systems beyond explanation to childish minds."

As I wind up this article, I still find it hard to believe that I actually experienced the voices myself — but I did. I am only reporting what I had witnessed — voices from another time and place. Whoever they are, I truly pray that they come, as they claim — in peace. □

OMNI-COSMICS

It's true! This hidden energy power responds at once to help you gain endless streams of wealth... control the thoughts of others... achieve protection from evil... make illness and pain disappear... and much more!

Dear Friend:

How would you like to be able to say a few words and transform an ordinary piece of glass into a MAGIC MIRROR which will produce all the riches, love, power, health and happiness you wish to create in your life?

Or how would you like to be able to say four power words to summon MAGIC SAGE who will come to your command any time you want him? Or say four other power words to help find lost people or treasure? Or nine words to heal an area of your body?

Now it's possible to do all these things and more—with the Miracle Power of OMNI-COSMICS. OMNI-COSMICS will enable you to perform the so-called "impossible" feats. With it, you will be able to attain a paradise on earth for yourself and for all those you love.

My name is Ann Fisher, and I'll tell you more about this amazing offer in just a minute, but first let me show you all the things OMNI-COSMICS will help you do...

- Produce money "from out of thin air".
- Make illness and pain disappear.
- Control the thoughts of others.
- Find lost people and treasure.
- Avoid problems before they arise by looking into the future.
- Win money in a horse race or a lottery.
- Travel astrally to faraway lands.
- Turn thoughts into solid material things.
- Repel black magic or voodoo attacks.
- Find your perfect mate and achieve marital happiness.

YOU WILL BE ABLE TO PRODUCE MONEY "FROM OUT OF THIN AIR!"

I'll show you how to use OMNI-COSMICS to achieve endless streams of wealth. And I'll tell you right now that whatever you do, you can have—I MEAN ANYTHING—and it can be obtained quickly and easily.

You may want a new car, a new home, a swimming pool, a mink coat, a diamond ring, an exclusive apartment, a fabulous vacation, some money to clear up your debts, or an income for life of say $20,000, $50,000 or even $100,000.

Well now, with OMNI-COSMICS, you'll see how to materialize the miraculous things you desire... You can become as wealthy as you wish... You can live like a king and never want again! Just look:

• POOR WOMAN WINS $100,000—Florence, a woman in her forties, was short of money for years. I mean she was really poor. Her shabby clothes came from friends or the Salvation Army. She hadn't bought anything new for herself in many years. But six weeks after using an OMNI-COSMICS technique I showed her, a miracle happened to Florence—she won an whopping $100,000 after buying an Irish Sweepstakes ticket.

• FACTORY WORKER WINS $1,000 A WEEK FOR LIFE—John R., a factory worker, was desperately in need of money for his rent, car payments and a pile of unpaid bills. He was discontented and unhappy and he could see no help in sight. But after doing an OMNI-COSMICS ritual I showed him, he bought a lottery ticket which paid $1,000 a week for life—enough to pay all his bills, take a long trip with his family, and build a new house!

• STUDENT PICKS NINE WINNERS IN A ROW—David A. needed money to go to college in the fall. He had never been lucky at the races, but he decided to try OMNI-COSMICS to finance his college education anyway. After performing the right ritual, he went to the track and picked out all nine winners and came home with a grand total of $1,600—which was enough for college that fall!

YOU WILL BE ABLE TO CONTROL THE THOUGHTS OF OTHERS—WITHOUT EVEN SAYING A WORD TO THEM!

With this Power, you can get the lover you want, change the attitude of a troublesome child, get a friend or neighbor to respond to your requests, or get a boss to give you that raise or protection you feel you deserve. You can influence a person to see it your way or do the things you want him to...

...you can stimulate the person's memory process, move his fingers, make him do what you want, repeat the words you want him to say, and do many other things. It does work. No one can resist this command power. See for yourself:

• GETS SHY BOYFRIEND TO PROPOSE MARRIAGE—Marilyn K. was in love with Kevin. They had dated for two years and were very much in love, but Kevin was shy and couldn't muster up enough courage to propose. Marilyn then tried my method of contacting Kevin's subconscious mind and suggesting that he propose. Later—out of the blue—Kevin popped the question!

• WOMAN GETS PROMOTION AND DOUBLES HER SALARY—Judy K. wanted to be promoted to a new position that was opening up where she worked. She knew she could handle the job, but she needed a chance to prove herself. A few weeks after she used an OMNI-COSMICS technique to tap her boss's mind, she was called into his office and given the job. A year later, she doubled her salary!

What's more, with the Miracle Power of OMNI-COSMICS, you'll be able to know the innermost thoughts of people in the next room or thousands of miles away—or even what a person is thinking when you talk to him on the telephone!

USE OMNI-COSMICS TO PROGRAM A PROTECTIVE FORCE AROUND YOU!

Today we live in an age with many negative influences around us. If you believe that voodoo and psychic assault does not exist in this Twentieth Century, you are incorrect. Negative forces do exist today and they do work.

Now, with OMNI-COSMICS, you can build a protective force around you so that you will have nothing to fear at all. That's just what John and Pamela did—and look at how they were saved...

• INVISIBLE FORCE SAVES MAN FROM DROWNING—John K., a fair swimmer, went out too far one day. When he was in the middle of the lake and there was no one in sight, he became very tired and started to sink. Somehow John, a regular user of OMNI-COSMICS, was saved. He didn't know how he got back to shore for he had felt an invisible force carrying him over the top of the water to land safely. OMNI-COSMICS saved him from drowning!

• OMNI-COSMICS SAVES LIFE OF YOUNG LADY—Pamela, a young student in one of my classes who habitually uses the protective powers of OMNI-COSMICS, was driving on a city street one day and heard a voice say "Stop or you will be killed." It was lucky she did, for another car went through the intersection at a high rate of speed. She would have been killed or seriously injured if she had not stopped.

You'll also see how, with OMNI-COSMICS protective powers, other people were able to repel a black magic attack... reverse a voodoo curse... travel with safety... get saved from a mugging attempt... and much more. THEY DID IT—AND SO CAN YOU!

SEE HOW TO USE OMNI-COSMIC POWER FOR INSTANT HEALING!

Do you want perfect health? OMNI-COSMIC healing power will respond immediately when you use the right power ritual. After a while, all illness and pain will disappear!

• OVERCOMES SERIOUS KIDNEY ailment—Terry J., a dear friend of mine, had just found out that he had a very serious kidney ailment. His doctor told him that his condition would shorten his life and that he "needed rest." But two months after he used an OMNI-COSMICS health ritual I showed him, his doctors were amazed to discover that his kidneys were in perfect working condition and that no signs of illness existed.

• HEALS ULCER AND IMPROVES BAD HEART CONDITION—Perry had a very bad heart condition and also a serious ulcer. His doctor wanted to remove his ulcer, but was afraid to operate because of the heart condition. But when Perry went back to his doctor after using an OMNI-COSMICS ritual I showed him, his ulcer had healed and his heart condition was greatly improved!

With my PERFECT HEALTH ritual, soon you will feel your body becoming stronger, healthier and more dynamic. I DID IT—SO YOU CAN! Just look...

I was told when I was very ill with asthma, that I would have to use a breathing machine three times a day for the rest of my life. My doctor told me that only one out of a hundred was ever cured of this disease.

But I refused to accept this. By tuning in my OMNI-COSMICS power, I was able to get better and eventually cure the asthma!

So why suffer from less-than-perfect health when you can discover how OMNI-COSMICS can be used to overcome nervous stomach, migraine headaches, skin blemishes, and insomnia... lower high blood pressure... and heal ulcers? In fact, with OMNI-COSMICS, you'll even see how to lose weight effortlessly and be more vibrant with lots of energy!

MIRACULOUS WEIGHT CONTROL AND MORE YOUTHFUL ENERGY!

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

ANN FISHER, an instructor of parapsychology at the State University of New York at Ithaca, and a nationally recognized psychic, medium, parapsychologist and ghost hunter, is a foremost authority and investigator of the higher powers of the mind. After many years of intensive investigation, she discovered the mighty powers of Omni-Cosmics—the miraculous power source revealed for the first time in this book. Ann Fisher has displayed her psychic abilities on many radio and television programs.

cal composition, and so forth, to be likely candidates for the abodes of life.

Marjorie Fish kept all this in mind while constructing her three-dimensional models. By 1973 her work had finally paid off—she had constructed a model of our galactic neighborhood which, when viewed from a position in space in the vicinity of the Zeta Reticuli system, bore a startling resemblance to the map drawn by Betty Hill.

Ms. Fish's calculations were checked by computer and her models were examined by leading professional astronomers. The consensus was that she had put forth an astonishingly impressive and highly plausible hypothesis to explain the "navigational map" reportedly seen by Betty Hill aboard the alien spacecraft.

Indeed, when the lines were connected on the three-dimensional model to match those on the Hill map, the lines connected only to solar or near-solar type stars. Within a 55-light-year radius of our solar system are some 16 such stars, all 16 being "main sequence" stars between F5 and K5 spectral classification, the outside parameters for possible life-supporting stars suggested by Schklovskii and Sagan in their book, Intelligent Life in the Universe. Our sun is a G2 type star, which falls almost exactly in the middle of that range.

The controversy still continues, some astronomers such as Carl Sagan and Stephen Soter calling for more rigorous interpretation of the data, others, like David R. Saunders, seeing in the data the revelation that our sun belongs to a closed cluster which includes other solar-type stars. But it is agreed among all that Ms. Fish's line of reasoning constitutes an exceedingly insightful and valuable contribution to the unraveling of the question of extraterrestrial intelligence. □

BEYOND THE SPEED OF LIGHT

Because scientists are now speculating on the existence of mysterious particles which travel faster than the speed of light, interstellar space travel may become a reality much sooner than we think.

Until very recently it was thought that nothing could exceed the speed of light, 182,000 miles per second. At that rate, light will travel some six trillion miles per year; and since the nearest star system to our own, Alpha Centauri, is four light years away a round-trip space mission traveling at light-speed would require eight years for its completion. For trips to other nearby stars the time involved would be considerably longer.

But now scientists are taking another look at Einstein's theory of relativity—the theory which seems to "forbid" anything from going faster than the speed of light. And the reason they are doing so is because of increasing evidence in favor of the existence of subatomic particles called "tachyons" (from the Greek word, tachys, which means swift).

"Tachyons may hold the key to interstellar travel," one prominent physicist recently noted, and they may already have been harnessed by other technological civilizations in our galaxy."

With all the major advances and astonishing discoveries made in the field of astrophysics in recent years, no one should be surprised if scientists soon uncover these elusive particles. And then, even the speed of light will no longer seem an insurmountable barrier to galactic travel. When that discovery is made, the day will be hastened when we can take our first, tentative steps toward the stars. □ mission answered by dots and dashes. This message was in no code used on earth, but the signals were far too regular to have been accidental.

"It was a mysterious message," Low said later. "It was hardly likely that it could have come from Mars. However, I must confess that I do not know who sent it."

On December 15 and 16, 1928, Robinson transmitted yet another broadcast on 14.28 kilocycles by the Companhia Radio Telegraphica Brasileira, an R.C.A. controlled station at Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. The results of this experiment were only vaguely reported in the United States and the test seems to have been a failure.

On November 28th, 1954, at 11:15 a.m., Chicago station WGN aimed a radio message towards flying saucers supposedly circling the earth. Nothing was heard at the station by way of a reply, but many radio listeners reported hearing ringing noises over the WGN frequency. These sounds were said to resemble sleigh bells. Two listeners tape-recorded what they said sounded like "strange musical tones."

In 1957 weird signals were picked up by radio receivers and even the public address systems at the International Airport of Maiquetia, Venezuela. They were also received by a short wave set at Barcelona, Venezuela.

The signals included loud poppings, exploding noises, followed by dots and dashes. Rafael Betnitez, a radio technician employed at the airport since 1940, said that the phenomena was unique in his experience. The radioman reported that he was under a physician's care for damage the jarring sounds had done to his hearing.

On the night of August 3, 1958, short wave listeners throughout the southeastern United States reportedly heard a weird message on the 75-meter amateur band. The speaker whose voice was heard from Kentucky to Florida, claimed his name was "Necoma," and that he was an inhabitant of the planet Jupiter. He said that he was transmitting from a spaceship orbiting 50,000 miles above the earth. The strange voice delivered a two hour harangue on the evils of atomic testing. The Jovian said that if atomic bomb tests were not immediately suspended, he would destroy our solar system. Necoma spoke in English, German and in a "musical gibberish" that he said was the language of his native planet.

It is almost too easy to brand this story a hoax since the destruction of the solar system would also annihilate Necoma's home along with the other eight planets. And of course Jupiter's ammonia-rich atmosphere certainly rules out life as we know it. Yet, if the reports of the Necoma broadcast are true, the hoaxter had access to powerful radio transmitting equipment, which he was willing to risk on a completely illegal broadcast.

In any case, the episode reminds me of the 1957 adventure of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard L. Martin. Their address is unknown to me but, their testimony appeared in the Rocky Mountain News on November 25 1957. The Martins received telephone calls from, of all things, a man who claimed to be orbiting the earth in a spaceship. "Take this message," one telephone transmission went, "I am having trouble transmitting from this frequency. You are the only one I could seem to make contact with...I am in a 360 degree orbit and I see no way of returning to earth, please contact...(static).. Do not be alarmed. In the near future you will understand what is happening. I can reach you only every four hours. I will contact you again in four hours."

There were no further messages.

1957 and 1958 were banner years for weirdo space messages. Jesse Ungari, a United States Navy Reserve radio technician, was watching a commercial broadcast by KPIX-TV, San Jose, California, when suddenly, the announcer's voice faded out only to be replaced by another. "We are calling you from outer space," the new voice said. "We are going to destroy your city in twenty four hours."

Police radios in Boise, Idaho, were overpowered by a voice speaking "something like Japanese." This transmission lasted five minutes.

The Martins' story, like the Necoma episode may have been an elaborate hoax but, what about Tesla and Marconi? What did they hear?

Both men believed they had contacted civilizations on our neighboring planets. This now seems out of the question. United States space probes seem to rule out the possibility of non-Terran civilizations or even highly developed forms of life in our solar system. Other stars would also be excluded and it would take four years for a radio signal to travel from earth to a planet of Alpha Centauri, our system's nearest stellar neighbor. Further, it must be pointed out that we have no real idea as to whether other stars even have planets. The reply from Alpha Centauri—if any, would take an equal length of time.

Tesla seems to have signalled some type of mobile transmitter within our solar system. Such an extraterrestrial device, a spaceship...was doubtless responsible for the signals received by Marconi and A.M. Low. These men seem to have made radio contact with space people. □

How to make others secretly DO YOUR BIDDING with the astonishing power of AUTOMATIC MIND COMMAND!

Here's how to get started in just 3 minutes...

Dear Friend:

New power is about to leap into your life . . . an astonishing way to control the thoughts and actions of others, without their knowing it . . . no matter how much they may not want to follow your instructions, they carry them out to a "T" every time!

With "Automatic Mind-Command" you'll be running the show. Make a wish, turn on The Power, and watch those around you drop everything and do what they're told.

And nobody will even have the faintest idea that you're behind it all. That's the beauty of "Automatic Mind-Command"—you are the only one who knows what's going on—you alone decide when things should start . . . stop . . . change around.

CONTROL YOUR FRIENDS OR STRANGERS!

You can use it to control your friends or strangers, one at a time or in large numbers, at any time, and ANY WAY YOU LIKE.

For example: You go into a bank for a loan. The credit man smiles but says "Sorry. You don't qualify for a loan right now; however, if there's anything else I can do for you, I'd be glad to . . ." Then in a flash, his tune changes when you let loose your "Automatic Mind-Command." He continues, "In fact, we'll be glad to give you $1,000 more than you asked for. And any time you want more, just see me personally! Thank you so much for coming by!"

Impossible? You'll be doing things like that every day without even thinking about it. As soon as you need something done, it's done! The people who do these things for you will remember what they did, but not why!

FUN POWER—TOO!

You can have a lot of fun with this power, too. Look how Evelyn C. used it at work . . . One day, while sorting papers, her boss angrily inquired why she had to make so much noise—and scolded her in front of everybody. Evelyn said nothing, but smiled to herself—for she had just turned on the "Automatic Mind-Command . . ." Suddenly the boss apologized for being a scoundrel. "Please . . . I'm sorry," he said, in front of everybody. "I'd like to make it up to you!" And he told her what a wonderful person she was! When Evelyn turned the power off, the boss just stood there with an open mouth, wondering what made him say all those things.

Think what this power can mean in your life. You need money . . . and it's there! You want some affection . . . you'll be smothered! You want peace and quiet . . . the world stands still!

NO MORE SECRETS WILL BE KEPT FROM YOU!

People who think they can hold back the facts will meet their master in you! You just fire a little "Automatic Mind-Command" at them, and they'll sing like meadowlarks . . . Nona J. was at her wits' end when she tried to find the money she'd put aside to pay the rent—it was gone. A frantic search through the house turned up nothing. There was only one possibility left . . . she asked Billy. A look of surprise crossed his face. No—he hadn't seen any money. But Nona didn't believe him, and started using "Automatic Mind-Command" to find out if he was telling the truth. Suddenly Billy reached into his pocket and took out a roll of money. After giving her the money, he acted as if nothing had happened!

Think how many secrets must be hidden all around you! Things your spouse won't tell . . .

went through a doorway, a time warp. Physically they disintegrated. By disintegration, do I mean that they are suspended? No! Are they in what you would call another dimension? Yes!... that could be."

Next I asked Alex if he was saying that molecules can be put together and regrouped and reformed again to make the transition, much as shown on the television series Star Trek! He replied:

"The Life After Death molecules are totally different in the reconstruction, but they're still physical like we are. I don't think anyone has all the answers. What I want to mention is that it's a shame there's so much fantasy built around the Bermuda Triangle. But I don't think the truth is like Bermuda Triangle Exposed. I saw parts of that, and I guess it's one explanation, but it's not the full explanation. I think we have to be more open, but not as gullible as we have been."

I thanked Dr. Alex Tanous for his time and information, and my last remark was: "People believe what they want to believe. They can either accept or reject, but they come to their own conclusions." □

It was amazing! Where I stood—the spot—just started rising and the area where I was standing was as big as a football field. I saw several wheels turning in the center of the "room" and made out some lights along the edges a distance away. The blue light was still flashing, still on me, making me feel dreamlike, beyond physical pain or pleasure. It was as though I just didn't exist at all, but was part of something else, more wonderful. I felt strange—like a god in a world of mere mortals, and I almost started laughing at the insignificance of earth's everyday problems; people making a living, paying the rent, falling in love, these things suddenly seemed so trivial, as though I were above them all.

Suddenly the sound I was hearing, the buzzing as of engines, faded, getting lower and lower, harder and harder to hear. And then finally they were gone. And so was that blue light which bathed me in its splendor.

It was then I noticed the heaviness returning to my physical body. I again was aware of sounds, human sounds, this time there was a mass of confusion as the crews of the oilrigs started to emerge from their hiding places, talking loudly of what had just taken place outside.

When I came to myself again, my senses returning to normal, I suddenly realized that I had seen a UFO, and, for a time, was a part of its total enigma. The electricity returned, and the pumps were working on the oil rigs. Although it seems like hours had gone by, only ten minutes had passed.

Someone told me later that a man with a camera was able to get a few good photos of the craft, but whether they are available to the public I can't say.

The story broke on the International News Wire, and I'm sending you a clipping of the UPI report (United Press International).

In the past, whenever someone mentioned UFO to me, I laughed, shrugging it off as so much nonsense. But then, I had not seen, nor experienced, what I had now.

For ten minutes of my life I actually left this world, becoming part of another, being able to accomplish in moments what man had dreamed of for centuries. Yes, for ten minutes I wasn't a human being any longer. I was a god, an extraterrestrial visiting Earth in a UFO.

Would anyone ever believe what I had experienced? I doubt it. I fact, I doubt even that my fiance back in the states would believe or understand. I love her, deeply, but don't plan on sharing this with her. □

Television Psychic Bob Ferguson shows you

MAGIC WORDS TO COMMAND MIRACLES OF WEALTH, LOVE, AND HEALTH-IN MINUTES!

Here is staggering proof, based on actual reported miracles, that what has worked for thousands will absolutely work for you!

Yes, how would you like to say some magic words, and be showered with hundreds of dollars in as little as 45 minutes! Or use amazing healing words, and get rid of crippling ailments instantly! Do you realize that it is possible to instantly and secretly command others to do your bidding . . . punish evil doers . . . see behind closed doors . . . be anything and have anything your heart desires . . . with magic words so simple yet so powerful, they can only be described as miraculous!

Yes, soon miracles will be happening to you every day, with the amazing secret of PSYCHIC TELEMETRY! My name is Robert A. Ferguson. You may have seen me on TV. I have shown hundreds how to use this amazingly simple power to command instant miracles to happen in minutes!

Impossible? I have staggering proof that it's not only possible but absolutely true, and that this MIRACLE POWER WILL ABSOLUTELY WORK FOR YOU—to change your life from poverty to riches, from poor health to radiant new health, to bring whatever you desire almost instantly! I'm not exaggerating when I say the sky's the limit!

POSITIVE PROOF THAT WHAT I SAY IS TRUE!

Right now I'm going to prove to you how easily PSYCHIC TELEMETRY works for you. Remember, I cannot profit by exaggeration. What I tell you has got to be true, and it costs you nothing to find out for yourself.

• HUNDREDS OF DOLLARS IN 45 MINUTES! I have a report here from Mary D. who needed $400 quickly. She had no idea where she could get the needed money. Her sister gave her a Psychic Telemetry Enchantment to say. In only 45 minutes, she received $400 from an unexpected source!

That's chickenfeed compared to the staggering results many others have achieved with these magic words! Dave E. had been unable to find a job and had only 3 days left before having to pay a big bill. He didn't have a cent. In one session, I showed him how to use the Psychic Telemetry Prosperity Ritual. The next morning, he was all smiles, as he reported a sudden windfall of $2,000—more than enough to pay the bill. A miracle? Of course! Yet just a very average example of the power of these magic words.

Dave used the Prosperity Ritual at about 9:00 P.M. At 8:00 A.M. the following morning, he got the money! As simple as that! I HAVE HUNDREDS OF CASES ON FILE, PROVING HOW EASILY MIRACLES HAPPEN with these magic words! Before I give you the next case, let me say this: DO YOU NEED MONEY? Say the powerful words on page 37! With this secret, money is always available to you!

You can get any amount of money at any time you need it! I am telling you the sky's the limit on how much money you can ask for and receive quickly with this power! Proof?

HOW AGNES C. WON OVER $500,000 WITH THE WORDS FOR WINNING CONTESTS!

Agnes C. was told about enchantments and spells, but insisted that she possessed no psychic powers and never had any psychic experiences. Here's what happened: she kept dreaming of a man in a flowing robe with dollar signs all over it, holding up 7 fingers, saying: "A dollar a day keeps poverty away!" She purchased a one-dollar lottery ticket.

"I simply could not believe it when my number was drawn for the grand prize (7 days later). I still can't believe it," she says. "I won over a half-million dollars." Agnes and her family are now enjoying their new lakefront home with its private boathouse and dock. They have two expensive autos and all the other luxuries money can buy.

The point is: YOU CAN USE THE SAME SECRET! You'll find the very words she used on page 37 of my book, and it won't cost you a single cent to find out what they are, and how they'll work for you.

MAGIC WORDS FOR MIRACLE HEALING!

Before I tell you how YOU may achieve a MIRACLE HEALING, let me tell you how a man was healed of arthritis in FIFTEEN MINUTES! A friend of mine, Louie A., tried the power Ritual for Magnetic Healing on page 146 on his next-door neighbor, Ken, who was confined to a wheelchair with arthritis. In a matter of minutes, the crippled man was WALKING! "I haven't been able to walk for months," he said, "and you got me out of my wheelchair."

Since that day, Louie has been able to heal "incurable" diseases! AND YOU CAN DO THE VERY SAME THING! This is just an average case. With this power, you can command healings like this on almost a daily basis. I'm telling you this power is FANTASTIC!

Look what you can do, with exact words I give you on page

139-140—

- Cure ulcers, nervous headache, and insomnia! Calm the nerves!
- Cure diseases of the liver and spleen—stop bleeding!
- Strengthen the eyes, control epilepsy and disorders of the stomach!
- Cure heart disease, increase circulation, and heal gout!
- Heal burns, conditions of the nose, throat and sinus, treat hay fever and asthma!
- ... and much more! With these words, you ask great rays of healing power to enfold you, pulsating within every nerve and cell of your body, cleansing, soothing and healing! Whatever you are trying to heal, you know the job will be done.

MIRACLE CURES REPORTED!

Do you realize that it is possible to get rid of crippling ailments almost instantly with healing words? You can command that all sickness and disease be banished from your body! Here is a force so powerful that it almost defies description! It can heal a withered limb or return sight to the blind . . . raise the crippled from their beds! It has brought miracle cures to the suffering and the lame!

• KIDNEYS MIRACULOUSLY HEALED! Evelina's only hope was to find a suitable kidney donor. She was so weak, it took two people to almost carry her to the hospital for her frequent treatments. There seemed to be little hope for her. With this method, she says . . .

"My whole body began to tingle—it felt like little electric shocks were playing games at the small of my back . . . suddenly . . . I knew I was healed! I leapt from my bed and ran into the living room screaming, 'I'M HEALED, I'M HEALED!' Our house was filled with tears of joy that night."

Today she is so healthy, she can hike and even climb mountains! It happens all the time with PSYCHIC TELEMETRY:

• HOW HARVEY C.'S ASTHMA WAS CURED! Harvey C. suffered asthma all his life. He could never run more than a few steps, without gasping for breath. Doctors were unable to cure it. I was so positive Harvey's asthma could be cured, I merely had him say the words on page 139-140. He never had another asthma attack! Now he can run and even play tennis!

• HAROLD SAW HIS LUNG SPOT VANISH! Harold F. was shocked, when told he had a spot on his lung, and needed an immediate operation. His wife quickly used the amazing healing words on page 145. The day before the operation, when x-rays were taken, the doctor was baffled. "I don't know how to explain this," he said. "Your lungs are perfectly clear."

MAGIC FORCES THAT WORK MIRACLES

Once you call on them, powerful forces stand ready to fulfill your every command. You can be confident that they will work a miracle.

• HOW ALLEN F. WON $800 AT THE CRAP TABLE AFTER USING THE MAGIC WORDS ON PAGE 30! Allen F. needed $800 by Monday morning. It was Friday already, and things looked hopeless. He's never been inside a gambling casino and knew nothing about roulette, craps, or blackjack, but he had a strange urge to try it. With only $1, he said the magic words on page 22, turned silently, and headed for the crap table. He threw the dice, and it came up 7. He tried it again and again. A crowd gathered. The dice were changed, but he kept throwing 7's. He walked away with $800!

Anyone can use these magic words. When you use them, what you command does happen! You can count positively on real results. It always works! It is not evil—nor is it Black Magic. Like electricity, it is simply a power given by nature to make life easier!

• MAGIC WORDS GIVE YOU POWER OVER OTHERS! Say the magic words on page 44 to make others do your bidding. With this Enchantment, you send forth mystic rays of power to impress those whom you command to bend to your will at all times. It makes other people like putty in your hands! No one can resist you! Let me show you how easily this happens!

To use this power simplicity itself! Say the magic words—then just sit back and relax. Within seconds, minutes at most, you will have a willing, obedient slave!

You can stand next to a person and place a thought in his or her mind. When others are asleep, you are free to speak directly to their subconscious mind. Your voice is remembered upon awakening. People obey your commands. It's fantastic!

• MAGIC WORDS THAT BRING YOU LOVE! Say the magic words on page 47, to command and guide the perfect partner to you . . . to command him or her to be blind to your shortcomings, and fulfill your every need and your every desire!

• MAGIC WORDS FOR SECRET KNOWLEDGE! The magic words on page 164 allow you to become an invisible traveler to anywhere in the world. You can listen to conversations and you can see what's going on, completely undetected. You will experience the ability to walk through walls and doors. Nothing can be kept secret from you—there is no longer such a thing as a locked door. You can enter any place at will. If you wish to know about be given every encouragement to collapse by these opportunists among us. It would be optimistic to suppose that if superior aliens taught us, we could be good pupils. At any rate, it would be almost as difficult to teach some of us to tell the truth, face facts, be fair, be able to love, and to be understanding and tolerant as it would be to teach algebra to a dog or cat. It is for us to recognize these limitations in ourselves rather than to have others point them out.

Superior alien civilization cannot possibly survive for a moment if superior aliens feel any conscience toward people who have as yet failed to mend their ways. In addition to the gentle motives that allow truly peaceful cultures on a mature world, superior aliens must possess an inbuilt motive for complete self protection against savages. Only in this way can they avoid being cheated at some crucial stage. Only in this way, in our past, could aliens who visited this world have done nothing to prevent war, torture, labor camps, and all the other grim spectacles of history.

Will our planet ever be considered for membership in the Galactic Club? It seems as though we are being watched and prodded and needled with the hope that we will. For the greater part, we are left to do it by ourselves because that is the only way it can be done. □

"WE'RE SEEING UFOs"/continued from page 44

Payne that: "We're not the gathering agency—we have no vested interest in these alleged UFO sightings." Payne then told them to report all this information to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT). Martin and his friends got nowhere at MIT where several science instructors denied handling anything dealing with UFOs.

With this type of attitude towards UFO research, it's no wonder that very little official information is passed on to the public. Warren Martin is a television technician who feels that what he saw was no illusion since five people saw it. He said: "I can guarantee you that this is no hoax. My eyes don't play tricks on me."

Tests showed that none of the five had anything to drink that night. Martin had sketched the UFO for us. Checking through our files here at Beyond Reality, we found only one UFO type which is very close to Martin's sketch this one was seen by "The Greatest" himself, Muhammed Ali. (reported to us back in 1972).

Since the Air Force no longer takes an interest in UFOs (or is keeping it under 'cover') they've passed the buck to the FAA, who in turn try to pass it on to someone else. We feel that much UFO information is being lost for lack of who to report it too.

If any reader has had any UFO experience, or have any photos, please contact this publication and we will pass it on to a reliable UFO research organization where it will be investigated properly. □ who are now probing into these area.

Another personality who showed interest in the doctor's strange encounter and who has voiced his belief in UFOs is former astronaut Gordon Cooper. He said, "I've known for some time that there has been very high-level interest in the Mexican encounter. I am not surprised at Doctor Diaz' physical description of the being. It conforms to previous encounters I've been told about."

Our staff researchers are looking into this case because we feel it is of utmost importance that the public be alerted to the danger we are being led into by our trusted scientists. The editors are checking with the United Nations Headquarters and will report any further developments in a future issue. □

BR: How and when did the Soviet scientists come up with their spaceship moon theory?

WILSON: First of all, Michel Vasin and Alexander Shcherbakov, senior scientists at the Soviet Academy of Sciences published their theory (July, 1970) in Sputnik magazine, an official Soviet government publication.

BR: How did they come up with this theory?

WILSON: Let's let the Soviet scientists speak for themselves:

"Although people long ago began to wonder whether the 'canals' on Mars were the creation of cosmic engineers, for some odd reason it has not occurred to look with the same eyes upon the peculiarities of the lunar landscape much closer at hand. And all the arguments about the possibilities of intelligent life existing on other celestial bodies have been confined to the idea that other civilizations must necessarily live on the surface of a planet, and that the interior as a habitat is out of the question.

"Abandoning the traditional paths of 'common sense,' we have plunged into what may at first sight seem to be unbridled and irresponsible fantasy. But the more minutely we go into all the information gathered by man about the moon, the more we are convinced that there is not a single fact to rule out our supposition. Not only that, but many things so far considered to be lunar enigmas are explainable in the light of this new hypothesis."

BR: Where can the reader get a copy of their report?

WILSON: Most large metropolitan public libraries will probably carry back issues of SPUTNIK. But the complete article by these two Soviet scientists detailing their sensational artificial moon theory is contained in my newly published book

BR: What has been the reaction of American scientists to this theory?

WILSON: I sent copies of my book to just about every major scientist quoted in the work. Most never bothered to answer beyond a thank-you note. A few who did take the trouble to read it and respond to its contents varied in their reaction.

One leading lunar expert, for instance, who long before the Apollo expeditions held that our moon was a stranger to our solar system and who after examining the Apollo evidence claimed that our moon was definitely older than the earth and therefore had to come from somewhere else misunderstood the entire thrust of my book. He wrote to me: "I have not read your entire book. I started with chapter 4 (the first few chapters dealt with UFOs seen on and around the moon especially by our astronauts) and read through to the suggestion that the moon was made by human efforts. This, of course, cannot possibly be true. Man has a great deal of capacity for doing things, but making a moon is beyond his capacity. It just cannot be a correct explanation. I agree that there are many puzzling things about the moon, and I think no suggestion in regard to the origin of the moon is satisfactory. But this explanation is not satisfactory either."

Of course, the artificial moon theory holds not that the moon was made by human effort but some alien intelligence.

BR: Were there any positive responses to this fantastic theory?

WILSON: Yes, many. One former NASA physicist and researcher now back at his old college post admitted: "I don't really think that science has addressed itself to the solution of some of these puzzles, particularly the purported UFOs and 'other-objects' sightings during Apollo. Certainly there also is a lot going on geologically and geographically that we don't understand. You make some good points, and I hope you will pursue the subject and publicize it as much as possible. You could be right..."

BR: Have you been in contact with these Soviet scientists?

WILSON: Although I have tried valiantly to contact them by mail I have not succeeded. I sent them several letters with no response—except one letter came back opened obviously by Soviet authorities with some cryptic remarks scrawled in undecipherable handwriting on the envelope. It remains to this day undecipherable.

However, such a reaction is not entirely surprising. When Dr. Carl Sagan, noted American astronomer co-authored Intelligent Life in the Universe with the great Soviet astrophysicist Joseph Shklovski (also connected with the Soviet Academy of Sciences), Sagan remarked it was more likely that he would shake hands with an alien being than he would with his author partner scientist Joseph Shklovski of the Soviet Union.

I am hoping eventually to establish contact with the two Soviet scientists who authored this artificial moon theory and am confident of eventual success. □

ence is recorded in two standard collections of spectral lore, both can be found in most libraries, Charles G. Harper's Haunted Houses, and C.J. Thompson's The Mystery and Lore of Apparitions.

Could the tube have been a radio sonde, or probe, from an extraterrestrial spaceship? If so, the instrument must have occupied a place in the electromagnetic spectrum slightly higher than what is generally regarded as visible light. Swifte and his wife could see higher into the ultra-violet than could their relatives.

A similar, though by no means identical observation was reported by the Baron de Guldenstubbe in Robert Dale Owen's ragbag collection of ghost stories, Footfalls on the Boundary of another world, published in New York in 1860. The Baron's adventure took shortly after midnight on March 16, 1854. Born in Latvia, he was then living at 23 Rue Street, Lazare, Paris.

Guldenstubbe returned home from a party, lit a candle, and selected a book to read. While paging through the volume he picked out, the Baron experienced eight or ten body-jarring "electrical shocks" in rapid succession.

A few minutes later, he saw a luminous, dimly-glowing cylinder of grey vapor forming in a corner of the room. The column, over ten feet high, reached from the floor almost to the ceiling. The color of the glowing tower changed from grey to blue. As the color altered, the column started to glow more brightly.

The figure of a man began forming within the shining cylinder. This form solidified sufficiently that the Baron could make out the body of a white-haired, elderly man. The blue-eyed old man was clean-shaven except for a few thin, white whiskers.

Guldenstubbe watched his visitor float away from the tube of light and hover in the center of the chamber. The elderly man eventually floated back into the column and faded away. The tube's brightness grew so intense that Guldenstubbe extinguished his candle—and was able to read several sentences from his book.

Robert Dale Owen believed that the Baron had witnessed the return of a departed human spirit, or a ghost, in the traditional sense of that word.

I wonder if the Baron could not have witnessed some type of scientific experiment. The episode as recorded by Owen is quite similar to the fictional "beaming down" procedure used on the television program, Star Trek. Could it have actually been an electronic teleportation from an extraterrestrial spaceship?

On July 5, 1852, less than two years before Guldenstubbe's experience, a Paris tailor's shop had been "buzzed" by a mysterious globe of light. The tailor's name does not seem to have been recorded, but his shop was on the Rue Saint James, near the Val de Grace.

The fireball entered a window and brushed across the floor towards the tailor. When the flaming sphere reached the terrified shopkeeper, it climbed up the man's body to the level of his face. The fireball seemed to be studying the tailor.

The thing then entered the shop hearth and roared up the chimney—burning through a pile of logs on its way up. Once it was above the roof, the sphere burst apart with a tremendous explosion that destroyed the chimney.

On May 23, 1955, a weird, glowing fog was observed by Rollie B. Mohrfahl of Jamesville, Wisconsin. Mohrfahl awoke at about two a.m. on the morning of the 23rd to find everything in his bedroom "bathed in a white light." This illumination was so bright that Mohrfahl—like Guldenstubbe before him—found he could read by it. He looked out the window and saw a glowing, shining, "living fog," white as cotton, but light as the glow from a white flamed fire. It was wrapped about the house thick as a blanket and everything could be seen "plain as day."

Mohrfahl had to flick on his radio for a time-check to convince himself that it really was night out and not day.

What real connection do the classic "ghost" tales of Edmund Swifte and the Baron Guldenstubbe have with the UFO mystery? At the present moment, it's impossible to tell but, certainly here is an area in which almost no research has been done although uncounted thousands of source documents exist.

The Aztec Indians of Central America saw the invading Spanish conquistadores as gods. Perhaps modern man who is more primitive than he would like to admit, sees extraterrestrial visitors in the guise of ghosts or spirits. □

"THE UNEARTHLY VOICES IN MY EARS" /continued from page 45

His sighting lasted for approximately 15 minutes before the interstellar craft zoomed off into the twilight and disappeared.

The Texan, who committed suicide, had seen a UFO some three days previous to taking his own life. The incident was related by his wife who told authorities, "My husband told me he had seen this silvery, metallic object following his car as he was driving home from work. Two days later, he complained of a ringing in his ears, and then of hearing voices."

Under hypnosis by qualified medical specialists, the Mississippian told of not only seeing a UFO a month before, but of actually being invited onboard by "men in shining clothing, almost human appearing faces and harsh, raspy voices."

Of the numerous cases suddenly coming to light, witnesses to these voices felt they were in mental communication with beings from another world. Many were in mortal terror.

According to Dr. Leo Sprinkle, associate professor of psychology at the University of Wyoming, "Screening tests showed that the individuals concerned were an average group of middle-class individuals from different countries, (Dr. Sprinkle questioned 82 people) psychologically stable,

Many who were plagued by these voices admitted
under hypnosis that they had been in constant communication with beings

with a wide range of interests."

Dr. Sprinkle said, "Many of these people thought they were being observed, and that attempts were being made to communicate with them." Many others reported dreams or visions; others claimed mental contact or a series of mental contacts. Most reported mental contact as "voices they hear in their minds."

Under hypnosis, subjects were able to reveal greater details of their UFO sightings. Dr. Sprinkle said that one man in Denver, Colorado, claimed he had seen a flying saucer—with a being standing by the craft and motioning him to come up a ladder that reached to the ground.

"When he repeated his story under hypnosis he became very frightened and upset, as if he were still being told mentally that the UFO's occupants wanted him to go with them. It was as though he was still acting under hypnotic suggestion from an unearthly force.

"If there is one thing that emerges loud and clear from my research," Dr. Sprinkle said, "It is that some form of communication is going on. My research, while not conclusive, indicates enough evidence to warrant more in-depth studies of the whole question of communication with life in outer space." □

YOU CAN KNOW THE FUTURE

(The Next 20 Years)

It is a fact. The future can be fairly discerned by an illuminated mind.

"No longer do the senses perceive," says an ancient Hermetic text, "Form loses its outline, and magnitude loses its dimensions. The mind cognizes."

To account for prophecy, it has to be understood that the image of the objective world that we perceive is not real. What we perceive does not reveal the totality of existence.

Divine Territory

The manner in which Revelation has worked over the ages is amazing. Prophet after prophet, sage after sage arose to inspire large crowds with accounts of his thrilling adventures in divine territory.

And another remarkable feature of prophetic diction is that the statements made are direct, the exhortations mandatory.

A Superior Intelligence

The way in which Revelations have been recorded is designed to indicate that the knowledge comes from a Superior Intelligence.

Quality Paperback (5 1/2" x 8 1/4")
201 pages, 23 photographs, Full-color cover

$5.00
Postage Paid

The argumentative or expository way of writing, as in the labored productions of scholars and philosophers, is absent in scriptural lore.

A Source Fully Informed

In prophecy, the statements and directions come as if from a Source which is fully informed about human nature and the average mental capacity of the multitudes for whom the Revelation is meant.

No other class of writing has held such a powerful grip on the human mind for thousands of years.

A New Book of Prophecy

Now a prophecy has been written to foretell the events of the next 20 years. This new Revelation, called The Shape of Events to Come, is the inspired work of the Kashmiri philosopher Gopi Krishna.

In rhymed couplets and in prose, the future is laid bare for all to see as clearly as if the events had happened yesterday.

Once you have read The Shape of Events to Come, you will know the future. The prophecies begin in 1980:

The next two decades will unfold
An awe-inspiring Drama, staged by Fate.
To end the present order, as foretold,
With Fires of War lit by lust, greed and hate.

Out of the inferno power-lust builds apace
Will rise a chastened and united race.

THE ORBITING "THING"

A tiny planet or something else has been discovered orbiting the solar system between the planets Saturn and Uranus.

If it is a planet, it's the smallest one yet discovered. The discovery was made by Charles Kowal who is responsible for the discovery of two of Jupiter's moons. At this writing no decision has been made on whether or not the thing is a planet or something else.

"It's not an asteroid, a moon of another planet, or a comet," said Dennis Meredith, a spokesman for California Institute of Technology. He also said, "The problem with calling it a planet is the fact that astronomers have never run across anything so small with all the characteristics of a planet".

Kowal discovered the orbiting object while scanning several photographs under a microscope. The photos which were taken on consecutive nights, showed that the object changed its position rapidly while the stars in the galaxy changed rapidly. The object is orbiting on the same plane as the rest of the planets in our solar system.

"Kowal is emphatic that he is not ready to call it a planet," Meredith said, "it's up to the fraternity of scientists to decide. But if it is a planet, it will be the smallest in the solar system".

Several ufologists whom we've contacted for an opinion are very excited about the discovery. Because of its size, they feel that it could be a mother ship. Gary Parsons, a member of our staff, and a well known ufologist, feels that it should be investigated by the government. "The scientists, as well as the astronomers, are always playing things down, it could very well be intelligent aliens out there keeping a close watch on us," he said.

In the meantime, the object, whatever it is, is still there waiting for astronomers, and scientists, to make up their minds whether it is a planet, or ..what. □

Beautiful Lapis-Lazuli

THE SIRIUS B® PENDANT

This remarkable pendant—illustrated here with just a few of the many lapis-lazuli pieces of jewelry buried with King Tutankhamun—was especially created to commemorate the beginning of a new cycle of the all-important binary star system known as Sirius A and B.

Sirius A is the brightest star in the sky, a brilliant blue-white jewel more than 20 times as luminous as the sun. It is to our solar system what the sun is to our planet—“the Sun behind the sun.”

Sirius B is the eternal companion of Sirius A. Though invisible to the naked eye, its light is intensely red, or feminine.

The two great stars pursue a wavy or serpentine course among their neighbors in the heavens, revolving together once every 49.9 years.

SIRIUS AS THE MESSIAH STAR

To the Egyptians, Sirius was the “announcer” or messiah star, for it heralded the beginning of the season of peace and plenty, following a long period of drought.

As a Pyramid text declares, it was “the creator of all green growing things,” because it was observed to make its first appearance of the season in the twilight, just before sunrise, at about the time of the annual inundation of the Nile.

A VALUABLE INVESTMENT

Lapis-lazuli, mined continuously for more than 6,000 years, was cherished by monarchs and the wealthy since the very dawn of history.

Now, like other precious substances of the earth, it is becoming very difficult to obtain. Prices are rising month by month.

The great American seer, Edgar Cayce, often spoke of the healing qualities of this rare gemstone.

When worn about the neck, he said, “it will not be merely an ornament but as strength [giving] vitality, virility ... and assurance of self. It helps [also] to develop innate psychic abilities and to increase sensitivity.”

and the Golden Serpent

In many lands the serpent has been looked upon as the curator of supernatural treasures of knowledge and as a medium of communicating wisdom more than mortal.

She was called the “Maker of Invisible Existence Apparent,” and it was she who first revealed and made manifest the fiery power that existed invisibly.

Now this most universal of symbols has been exquisitely fashioned into a lapis-lazuli pendant of rare beauty and subtle charm.

Named Sirius B,® this extraordinary piece of fine jewelry pays tribute to the “fiery power” behind the brightest of all the stars in the heavens, Sirius A.

Its beautifully crafted bezel is of 24K gold vermeil over solid sterling silver. With 14K gold-filled chain, $45, postage and insurance included.
